Flood Dangers Diminishing in Spite of Added Rains in State

Waters of Chippewa and Wisconsin Rivers Receding

2ND TRAIN WRECKED

Roads Being Reopened; Crop Damage Reported Heavy

Milwaukee —(AP)—Although heavy rains fell in south central Wisconsin during the night, the Chippewa and Wisconsin rivers—principal danger spots on the state's flood map—receded rapidly today.

At Wisconsin Rapids, the Wisconsin fell to a 12 foot stage after reaching a high mark of 14 feet late yesterday.

At Knowlton, where some highways had been under esveral feet of water, all roads were reopened.

The Chippewa river also was returning speedily to normal.

Fair weather was the order of the day, and the Milwaukee Weather Bureau predicted "generally fair tonight and Tuesday; slightly cooler tonight in the east and north portions:".

Heaviest rainfall in the state during the last 24 hours was at La Crosse, which recorded .88 of an inch.

Second Train Wreck

Receding water left in their wake a toll which included another train wreck—second in three days—flooded homes, stranded livestock, inundated and rotting fields of crops, and badly disrupted highway and rail communications.

The known death toll remained at five, with a sixth undoubtedly to be added. Four persons were injured, but not seriously, in the collision of two north western road trains near Sparta early yesterday.

Cities in the lower Wisconsin and Chippewa valleys awaited the approaching flood crests with uncertainty.

L. Walter Dick, Dubuque meteorologist in charge of the river and flood warning service for the Wisconsin and part of the Mississippi rivers, said a 17-foot stage would reach Portage late Monday night, with a probable crest above 18 feet by Thursday.

The stage at Durand late yesterday was 15.2 feet, at a stand, 4.2 feet over flood stage but still 4.8 feet under the record of 54 years ago to the day.

Highway crews in the vicinity of Wausau said the Wisconsin river had receded Sunday afternoon, but that opening of flood gates at Rhinelander would bring fresh danger at Wausau and Mosinee, probably early today.

Reinforce Dams

Dams along the Wisconsin were reinforced with 12 by 12 timbers. Large cracks were visible on the Mosinee dam, between Highway 51 and Mosinee, after a terrific pounding by flood waters.

The Iowa meteorologist also said a record stage of 19.8 feet apparently was set at Knowlton, but that there was no way of telling because the gauge house itself was under water, late Sunday. Highway 51 south of Knowton in southern Marathon county was under water three to seven feet deep

Late Sunday, Highway 34 along the Wisconsin from Dancy to Knowlton was under a raging current.

Heavy rains fell for a short time Sunday afternoon at Stevens Point, where part of the business district was flooded Saturday. Heavy rains were reported Sunday night near Sparta, Tomah, and Wisconsin Dells. A thunderstorm raged in Milwaukee early Monday.

Rescue Families

Durand firemen rescued families of Jack Verina and Milo Turtlelook early Sunday, rousing them from their sleep. A large part of Durand's business district was under water, and most basements were flooded. Highway 10 west of Durand was closed. A 35-foot wooden bridge and a 50-foot steel bridge were out, and 1,000 feet of gravel road along Thompson Ridge were washed out.

W. T. Taylor ferried four race horses to safety near Durand. Fred Benke was one of half a dozen

Thousands Look Forward To Big "Sales Mean Jobs" Rally Wednesday Evening

OPERATION SUCCESS

James Roosevelt (above), eldest son of President Roosevelt, today apparently was recovering from a stomach operation performed Sunday at Rochester, Minn. The chief executive was with his son.

Residents of Appleton and vicinity today looked forward eagerly to the big "Sales Mean Jobs" rally which will be held Wednesday evening at Pierce park.

The crusade has drawn the interest and support of thousands and those thousands will jam Pierce park Wednesday night to hear De-Loss Walker, associate editor of Liberty magazine, deliver the "Sales Mean Jobs" message in his energetic, forceful manner.

There is no doubt in the minds of the men who have been working on the crusade that the rally will be one of the most successful events in Appleton history. They've made big plans.

The supporting cast for Walker will include Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Alex O. Benz, general chairman for the crusade, a series of high-calibered acts presented by the Edward Mumm show, the Appleton High school band, and the state champion SOTAL Drum and Bugle corps.

Newspaper publicity, pennants, placards, buttons, and the huge electric sign over the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant have carried the "Sales Mean Jobs" slogan to every corner of the city. It has become a familiar phrase. The crusade's economic soundness and workability is being recognized more widely each day.

A special "Sales Mean Jobs" radio program will be presented over station WTAQ from 6:45 to 7:15 tomorrow evening. Mr. Benz, the general chairman, and H. L. Davis, Sr., chairman of the publicity committee, will be the speakers. They will outline objectives of the nation-wide crusade, what has been accomplished this far in Appleton, and describe highlights of Wednesday night's rally.

Rally Reminders

There will be plenty of reminders of the rally this week. A radio car will drive up and down College avenue Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon between 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock, with an announcer telling listeners about the Pierce park program. If you should hear factory whistles tooting away between that

James Roosevelt Recovering From Serious Operation

Large Gastric Ulcer Removed From Stomach At Rochester, Minn.

Rochester, Minn. —(AP)— President Roosevelt was cheered today by the apparent success of a serious stomach operation on his oldest son, James.

The chief executive was with his son yesterday as he rallied from the effects of the anesthesia.

"How do you feel?" the president asked James, who is a patient at the Mayo clinic .

"Rocky, rocky," came the reply.

Mr. Roosevelt, who sped to Rochester by special train from the summer White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., was in St. Mary's hospital here yesterday while James had a large gastric ulcer removed in an operation which required an hour and 45 minutes.

Stephen Early, the president's press secretary, said physicians reported James' condition "entirely satisfactory."

Bulletin Issued

A bulletin regarding him issued this morning said:

"He had as good a night as could be expected for the first post-operative night. Temperature 99, pulse 100, respiration and blood pressure normal."

Hunt Boy After Three are Slain

Bodies of Farm Couple And Adopted Daughter Found in Minnesota

Deer River, Minn. —(AP)— Sheriff Elmer Madsen today arrested a 16-year-old farm boy, Harry Yern, and said the youth confessed slaying three persons on a farm Saturday night. Sheriff Madsen seized the lad while he was walking along a highway four miles north of here.

Deer River, Minn. —(AP)— Sheriff Elmer Madsen of Itasca county today had deputies beating through dense woods and patroling all roads in their search for a 16-year-old, missing since a farm couple and their adopted daughter were found slain.

Madsen said the youth, Harry Yern, had been reported seen near the blazing farm home at which the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Matt and Aili Jama, 23, were discovered yesterday.

Jama's body was found in the bedroom of his burning house. The bodies of his wife and adopted daughter were discovered beside a smouldering haystack near the barn. A light shotgun lay across the women's bodies. Two discharged rifle shells were found near the house.

Madsen said the women had been shot and apparently dragged from the house to the barn.

Yern had lived with the Jamas, and was to have been adopted by them, the sheriff said.

A note found at the farm, said Madsen, read:

"I got so mad at my foster parents that I thought it best to kill them, and I killed Harry Yern and put him in the lake." It was signed "Aili Jama," but the sheriff said he doubted she wrote it.

Branigan Late in Court as Libel Trial Starts at Janesville; Has No Attorney

Janesville—(AP)—A jury of nine housewives and three men was chosen today to try E. R. Branigan, Beloit fuel dealer and politician, in circuit court on three counts of criminal libel.

Branigan arrived in court 45 minutes late, after Judge James Wickham, Eau Claire, who had been called in to hear the case, forfeited the defendant's $5,000 bond. The Judge, however, said he would reinstate the bond if Branigan appears in court promptly each day during the trial.

Branigan appeared without counsel and asked for delay in the trial in order to hire a lawyer, but Judge Wickham told him he had had plenty of time to do so.

Then Branigan offered an affidavit of prejudice against the judge. The court threw it out as not having been presented in time.

When the Beloit man started to interrogate prospective jurors, he asked whether they could give a fair trial to a man who was "denied the right to get a lawyer"—but Judge Wickham cut him short, ruling the question improper. Branigan had no other questions to ask.

Judge Wickham scheduled the trial to start this afternoon and warned Branigan that if he didn't get a lawyer in the meantime, it would be his own fault. Branigan is accused of libeling 17 prominent Rock county persons and a Janesville law firm.

New Deal Test As Maryland Goes to Polls

Week's Elections to Go Long Way in Determining Fate of 'Purge'

MAINE BALLOTING

Voters of Nine States Will Take Part in Primaries Tomorrow

Politics in Brief

Today—Maine elects three house members, governor, and other state officers, Maryland nominates candidates for senator, governor, and six house seats.

Tomorrow —Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Vermont, Michigan, Louisiana, Utah and Washington hold primaries. Connecticut Democrats start convention. South Carolina Democrats choose candidate for governor in run-off primary.

Wednesday—Georgia nominates candidates for senator, governor and house. Delaware Republicans select house candidate in convention.

Thursday—Connecticut Republicans nominate ticket in convention.

Baltimore —(AP) —Overcast skies failed to slow the expected heavy balloting in Maryland's primary today to decide whether Senator Millard E. Tydings, conservative Democrat, shall be renominated over the express desire of President Roosevelt to replace Tydings with Representative David J. Lewis, ardent New Dealer.

Baltimore voters, contending for the first time with voting machines, found early difficulties in their own uncertainty and that of election officials as to operation of the machines.

Voting was slow and tedious and complaints were loud and vigorous from voters who formed lines before 5 o'clock a. m., C. S. T., when the polls opened, and in some instances, were compelled to leave for work without casting their ballot.

By the Associated Press

The Tydings-Lewis primary in Maryland edged today into the limelight usually reserved for Maine's state election, forerunner of the general November balloting.

Voting in the two states inaugurated a busy political week, which will go far in determining success

Dewey Protests Move for Mistrial

Prosecutor Fights to Prevent Collapse of Case Against Hines

New York—(AP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, fighting to prevent collapse of the state's case against James J. Hines, charged in a legal brief today that former District Attorney William Copeland Dodge tried to "conceal Hines' connection with various rackets infesting the city" from the 1935 runaway grand jury.

The 36-year-old prosecutor filed his brief with Justice Ferdinand Pecora in protest against a defense motion for a mistrial, based on Dewey's reference to testimony given before the 1935 grand jury.

Dewey asserted that numerous witnesses "testified concerning Hines' alleged participation in a number of rackets and illegal pursuits," at that time.

He insisted it was "proper and competent" to show that the so-called runaway jury "broke with Dodge because he had failed to follow up a single lead that had been uncovered in connection with Hines' other alleged criminal activities and because they believed Dodge was not only protecting Hines but also seeking to prevent any mention of his name in the grand jury by any witness."

List Brooke's Debts As Trial Continues

Columbus, Ga.—(AP)—District Attorney T. Hoyt Davis introduced today at the opening of the second week of the trial of Major John R. Brooke, Jr., accused of murdering his wife, a list of debts amounting to $6,500 which he said was taken from the Brooke quarters.

Defense Counsel T. Hicks Fort agreed he would admit installments on the amount of indebtedness had been paid through May.

The wife of the army officer was found slain in their quarters at Ft. Benning June 8.

Ford Pearce, Columbus banker, testified that on June 9. Major Brooke's bank account showed a deposit of $1,000 and a balance at the day's end of $700. The balance on June 7, was $3.94 and on June 8, $1.94, Pearce stated.

Major L. H. Sims, Ft. Benning finance officer, testified that army regulations state an officer's official bills must be paid before the tenth of each month and that Major Brooke had never been delinquent in his accounts on the post.

CHILD DROWNS

Hitler Pledges Sudeten Germans Protection but Doesn't Favor Plebiscite

British Cabinet Members Silent on Action at Meeting

FRANCE ANXIOUS

Paris Crowds Watch Latest Reports From Nurnberg

London —(AP)— The British cabinet apparently satisfied itself in a two-hour emergency meeting today that it had done all it could for the moment both to head off war and to be ready if Adolf Hitler tells his army to march to the east.

Official silence effectively blocked efforts to learn what the ministers said and did. But the fact that they decided not to meet later today was taken unofficially to mean they were convinced that further diplomatic steps before Hitler's address at Nurnberg would be futile.

Encouraged by political and public support on all sides, the cabinet was believed to have given first place to military steps if British warnings proved ineffective and there developed the likelihood of war over Czechoslovakia.

Review Precautions

The ministers were said to feel that they had taken every step advisable in advance of the speech to convince Germany that Britain would fight at the moment France's integrity were menaced.

They were understood to have reviewed in their meeting the military, naval and aerial precautionary measures already taken. Observers thought these were considerably more extensive than meagre announcements would indicate.

Meanwhile, at an exhibition of air raid shelter models, Wing Commander E. J. Hodsoll, inspector general of air raid precautions, made an appeal to industry to "take this extremely seriously."

Paris—(AP)—France's cabinet sat with Premier Edouard Daladier today, reviewing the nation's preparations, and planning further preparations in the event of a menacing turn in the critical central European situation.

An open telephone line connected the premier's office with No. 10 Downing street, London. Daladier and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain were said to have conversed frequently while their nations tensely awaited Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's pronouncement tonight of German foreign policy.

In Paris and throughout France crowds gathered before news bulletin boards, anxiously watching

HITLER TALKS TO 'OTHER GERMANS'

Surrounded by nazi emblems, Chancellor Adolf Hitler is shown here at Nurnberg, Germany, as he saluted marching troops. In an address Der Fuehrer hinted that union of the Sudeten German region of Czechoslovakia was necessary to satisfy nazi ambitions for "other Germans." This picture was transmitted from Berlin to New York by radio. In another speech at Nurnberg, Hitler demanded tonight that Czechoslovakia give 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans "their rights" but did not indicate precisely what his intentions were toward Czechoslovakia. He left unanswered the question the world had waited anxiously to hear him discuss—will Germany use force to achieve her ambitions for the Sudeten Germans?

Says Group 'Ruined and Doomed to Slow Extinction'

RAPS DEMOCRACIES

Demands End of 'Oppression in Czechoslovakia'

Nurnberg, Germany—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler in one of the greatest oratorical efforts of his life threw down the gauntlet to England and France tonight, asserting that come what may Germany was determined to liberate the Sudeten Germans.

Hitler's promise of aid to the 3,500,000 Sudetens in Czechoslovakia was unconditional.

"I assure the democracies that the fate of the Sudetens is not a matter of indifference to us," he said challengingly.

"If these harrassed people feel they are without rights and aid they will get both from us."

Nurnberg, Germany—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today rejected the idea of a plebiscite in Czechoslovakia after declaring 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans there were "being systematically ruined and doomed to slow extinction."

"A plebiscite in Czechoslovakia," the fuehrer said, "would only be conducted under brutal oppression."

He had declared previously, in the declaration of German foreign policy the world had waited tensely to hear, that in Czechoslovakia "millions of people are being manhandled and suppressed."

"The depriving of these human beings of all rights must come to an end," he thundered.

He told his cheering followers that "we see democracy and bolshevism arrayed in a solid front" against nazi Germany.

"Suffering" in Austria

The fuehrer, opening the speech for which the world was waiting, spoke at length of what he called "the sufferings" of nazi adherents in Austria before the annexation.

The first portion of his pronouncement before the climatic meeting of the tenth annual nazi party congress was devoted entirely to recalling the party's fight for supreme power of Germany.

Then he turned to his attack against the democracies and bolshevism, asserting that they were united against naziism under "the slogan of liberty, equality, fraternity."

"It is a bloody mockery of history," the fuehrer continued, "that the democracies are allied with the most brutal dictatorship in the most brutal dictatorship in the world.

'It was they which attempted to hinder Italy's action in Ethiopia."

Hammering home the point that the nazis had built Germany into a mighty nation again, Hitler turned to Czechoslovakia.

"Scorn is being heaped on us today, but thank God we are in a position to prevent any rape of Germany," he declared.

"Millions Manhandled"

"I am now speaking about Czechoslovakia. This state was founded according to democratic principles.

"As these democratic principles are applied, millions of people are being manhandled and suppressed. The great democracies want to convince the world that Czechoslovakia has a special political and military mission to fulfill.

"Three and a half million Germans in Czechoslovakia are being systematically ruined and doomed to slow extinction."

"The depriving of these human beings of all rights must come to an end," the fuehrer thundered.

But again the German chancellor held out an olive branch to France.

"Strasbourg means much, but we have surrendered it in the interests of peace to settle for once and for all the eternal strife with France," he said, referring to the cession of Alsace-Lorraine after the World war.

Tells Of "Sacrifices"

"On other frontiers too we have made sacrifices. We have acted more than loyally."

"I believe that the cause of European peace is not served by creat-

FDIC Studies Possibility Of Insuring Bank Deposits Beyond Existing Maximum

Washington—(AP)— Chairman Leo T. Crowley disclosed today that the federal deposit insurance corporation is studying the possibility of insuring bank deposits above the present $5,000 limit.

Today's mails carried to the 13,719 insured banks of the country a questionnaire asking the number of their deposit accounts below $5,000, between $5,000 and $10,000, between $10,000 and $25,000, and over $25,000. Crowley, recalling that Chairman Steagall (D-Ala.) of the house banking committee advocated the increase, said the F. D. I. C. wanted to find out how much extra risk would be involved.

Crowley declined to commit the corporation in advance of the survey, but expressed belief if the additional risk was very small, there would be little or no objection to increased insurance.

Deposits Increase

Previous estimates have shown that 95 per cent of the nation's deposits are covered by the $5,000 insurance now provided, but no recent studies have been made and deposits since have grown to the near record total of about $47,500,000,000.

The talk of higher insurance, Crowley explained, is not due to any weakness in the banks. He said they were in excellent condition. Despite the business recession, he said, only 38 banks suspended in the first half of 1938; five of them had not been able to get insurance.

Other banking proposals which may be discussed during the next congress include a request of the federal reserve board for more power to control credit inflation by boosting revenue requirements, the bill of Senator Glass (D-Va.) to prevent further growth of bank holding companies, and consolidation of the three federal bank examining agencies.

Fight 'Red' Hunters, Special Privilege, Secretary Ickes Says

Put-In-Bay, Ohio— (AP)— Lake Erie's isles where thundered battle fleets 125 years ago, echoed today with the war cry of Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, to fight "special privelege" and "red" hunters."

"The man who is most dangerous to our institutions is the man who would deprive any citizen of civil rights guaranteed by the constitution or would deny those economic rights without which civil rights are themselves a mockery," Ickes said.

"Yet we find so-called statesmen harrying the land for communists while bitterly fighting conservative proposals to remedy our economic conditions so that communism would have no chance to take root."

As the climax of a three-day celebration of Commodore Oliver Perry's victory in the Battle of Lake Erie, Secretary Ickes formally accepted the towering Perry memorial here yesterday as part of the national parks service.

Claim Labor Hearing Was Not 'Full, Fair'

Washington—(AP)—The Ford Motor company complained to the national labor relations board today that the examiner who heard charges of Wagner act violations at the company's Long Beach, Calif., assembly plant did not conduct "a full and fair hearing."

This complaint was included in a list of exceptions the company filed to the trial examiner's report. Thomas H. Kennedy, the examiner, held that the company had interfered with the rights of its employes to join the United Auto Workers Union (CIO).

The board will fix a date for oral arguments on the company's exceptions.

Five Killed in Collision On Highway in Michigan

Alma, Mich. —(AP)— Five Michigan young persons were killed and three others hurt critically Sunday in a head-on automobile collision on M-177 near St. Louis, Mich.

Those killed were Donald W. Fortney, 20; Fred Wheeler, 22, and Max Sparks, 19, all of Ithaca; Harold Pollock, 22, of Crystal, and Evelyn Call, 16, of Ovid.

An automobile driven by Jack Davis, Chicago, crashed into the wreckage a few minutes later, but he and the other occupants of his car escaped injury.

Former Postmaster Is Guilty of Embezzling

A. R. Eads Dies On Delavan Train

Former Appleton Resident Collapses En Route To Milwaukee

Albert R. Eads, 62, former Appleton resident, collapsed and died on a Milwaukee road train en route from Delavan to Milwaukee today, the Associated Press reported. Coroner Frank J. Schultz of Milwaukee said death was due to natural causes.

Mr. and Mrs. Eads were on their way to Milwaukee to make their home in that city. A farewell party was given in their honor at the First Baptist church of Appleton Wednesday night.

Mr. Eads was a member of the First Baptist church for the last 25 years and was active in all phases of church work.

Survivors are the widow; two sons, the Rev. Robert Eads, Delavan; Harold, Milwaukee; and one daughter, Mildred, Milwaukee.

Itinerant Barber Denies Murder of 8-Year-Old Girl

Portsmouth, N. H.—(AP)— Herbert W. Sprague, 53, of Portland, Maine, an itinerant barber, today pleaded innocent in municipal court to a charge of murdering Barbara Driscoll, 8, whose skull-crushed body was found stuffed under a building in a railroad yard Sept. 4.

Judge J. R. Waldron held him without bail and continued his case for a week on request of Solicitor Stephen Wheeler of Rockingham county, who was awaiting pathological analysis of blood stains allegedly found on Sprague's clothing.

Sprague was arrested last night when police said they found him asleep in an abandoned warehouse, several empty bay rum bottles by his side.

Wheeler said Sprague admitted striking the child with a stone when she repulsed his advances after he lured her to the toolshed.

Submarine Shaped Like Whale Crosses Lake in 11 Hours

Chicago—(AP)— It took Barney Connett 10 hours and 50 minutes to cross Lake Michigan in his home-made submarine shaped like a whale, but disaster almost overtook him.

The 32-year-old mechanic nearly collapsed from lack of oxygen yesterday while covering the 38 miles from Michigan City, Ind., to Chicago.

He was taken aboard a sloop which accompanied him on the hazardous trip. Barney spent 45 minutes recuperating while the big steel sub filled with fresh air. Then, like a sardine in a can he climbed back, adjusted his four-foot periscope and continued his trip at three miles an hour under calm waters.

Connett said he spent six years building his submarine, which is 11 feet long, 37 inches high, 23 inches wide and weighs 1,050 pounds.

Confesses Setting Fire to Chicago Hotel in Which 8 Lost Their Lives

Chicago —(AP)— Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan said today that Frank J. Kolesiak, 26, had confessed participation in setting afire Hotel Center on April 6 when eight men were burned fatally.

Sherman V. Coultas, state fire marshal, said his deputies arrested Kolesiak, a motor express warehouseman, Friday at his west side residence. Kolesiak was turned over to the state's attorney's office today.

Coghlan said Kolesiak related this story of the fatal fire in the W. Madison street hostelry:

Kolesiak and another man who lived at Hotel Center for a time were ordered to stay out of the hotel two weeks before the fire. The other man said he'd "get even" with the hotel owner, Reuben Fischer, by burning the place.

Kolesiak said he didn't want "any part of it," but his associate displayed a pistol and said "you're going along; I don't want anyone squealing."

They siphoned some gasoline from a car in a parking lot, soaked rags with it, threw the rags near an elevator shaft on the third floor of the hotel, and Kolesiak said, the other man lit the rags with a match.

Kolesiak said he hadn't seen the other man since.

Politicians Get in Their Final Wallops As Primary Approaches

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—With the primary election day which spells their destiny—for this year at least—drawing rapidly closer, hundreds of candidates of five political parties this week stepped up their efforts in a final splurge to win the right to stand as the nominees of their organizations in the state general election in November.

With a week remaining to them to woo the celctorate with oratorical dynamite, mingled doses of denunciation and promises, aspirants to the long string of state, federal and county offices began the trek toward the sections which have a concentrated voting power, the Fox River Valley and Lake shore counties.

The primary election is next Tuesday, September 20.

Whele there has been heat and vituperation aplenty during the last few weeks of the primary campaign voters and observers alike agree that the campaign has not been up to Wisconsin's usual standard. There is something lacking, either interest by the electorate, or outstanding candidates, for the canvass thus far has been decidedly flat.

Yet there are a couple of contests among the hundreds which will be decided at the ballot boxes next week which deserve more than passing attention. Outstanding among them are the feverish fights for the senate nominations in the Progressive and Republican parties, and the plucky battle of the Republican-Democratic Coalition, which started out politically friendless last winter and now is recognized as a profound factor in the primary results on all fronts.

It may be that Senator F. Ryan Duffy, the pride of Wisconsin Democracy, has observed the portents of the bitter battle for the senate nominations in the Progressive and Republican parties, for if they mean anything, they mean that the politicians in those parties are confident of bowling over the Fond du Lac New Dealer in November.

Progressives Split

Because it is the majority party, and because its leading members are now split into bitterly hostile camps over the issue, the fight between Congressman Thomas R. Amlie of Elkhorn and Lieut. Gov. Herman L. Ekern of Madison for the Progressive senate nod is the most significant. It is unusual too because just now Amlie is considered in all quarters to be at least equal, and maybe has a little edge, over his veteran opponent.

Ekern is running, whether officially or not, as the LaFollette candidate. LaFollette lieutenants all over the state are plugging for him. He has the support of William T. Evjue, whose power, probably overrated, is still a factor, and has the advantage of running from a position in the capitol to which the head of the party, Governor LaFollette, only a few months ago appointed him.

Amlie ran without asking the Progressive hierarchy about it, although he is supposed to have extracted a pledge for neutrality from the executive office. He was pushed into the field by the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation, and was given little chance two months ago. But his critics hadn't taken his full measure. Volunteers flocked to his campaign headquarters, Socialists, young people from the university, and others who felt that Ekern's bid was a recognition of the right in the party.

The opposition chortled as it watched the division between conservatism and radicalism, as exemplified in the candidacies of Ekern and Amlie, unfold. They showed even more happiness when Ekern, nettled at the progress of big Tom began attacking his opponent as having Moscow ideas, as proposing a federal government dictatorship over the economic system, of extremism, in short, of not being a very good follower of the old-time liberalism of the elder LaFollette, to which Ekern pledges himself from every stump.

Evjue Peeved

For the last few weeks both candidates have been pummeling each other with bared fists, despite the fact that they are pledged to support the winner. Amlie's more fervent supporters, including the labor press in the state, has been circularizing broadsides attacking Ekern for the manner in which he earned his considerable wealth—as an insurance corporation lawyer—and for his old-fashioned concepts of political and economic liberalism. This has brought angry outbursts from Evjue, whose patience has worn thin by what appears to be an organized letter writing campaign among Amlie eulogists to Evjue's newspaper.

While Progressives either mourned or enjoyed the factional strife between the Ekern and Amlie enthusiasts, six Republican hopefuls have been striving to convince members of Wisconsin's second party to give them the senatorial nomination. Principal contenders as the campaign enters its final lap are Alexander Wiley of Chippewa Falls, 1936 candidate for governor, and Edward J. Samp of Madison, former chairman of the party's state committee.

The fact that at least two of the six candidates have made little effort to campaign lends weight to the belief that they do not intend to be serious contenders. They are John B. Chapple, Ashland, who marched out of the north several times in the past to make whirlwind campaigns for governor and senator, and S. J. McMahon of Milwaukee, former Hoover campaign manager in Wisconsin.

Chapple has not yet taken the stump, but has waged a "front-porch" campaign, although he should know that such stunts don't work in Wisconsin politics, while McMahon has confined his work to the Milwaukee area.

Two other candidates, William Campbell of Oshkosh and William H. Stafford of Milwaukee, 20 years a congressman, have been active, but are given little chance over Samp and Wiley. Stafford has attracted some attention through his accusations that the Duffy supporters have solicited money from WPA clerical help and federal employes in Wisconsin, and has won a statement from the Sheppard committee in Washington that an investigator will be sent to the state to look into the matter.

With Coalitionists

Campbell has identified himself with the Coalition movement, and the strength he will carry will be reflected by the supporters of that idea and those liberals in the G. O. P. who supported his leadership of the Borah campaign among Wisconsin delegates at the 1936 Republican national convention.

All Republican candidates, however, have scrupulously avoided attacking each other, have confined their campaign broadsides to Mr. Roosevelt and the LaFollette state administration.

The reported investigation of Senator Duffy's campaign finances, incidentally, strikes many observers as ironic when his previous WPA connections are recalled. Earlier this summer his efforts to take over the state WPA office from the Progressives attracted considerable attention, except in Washington, where Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Roosevelt apparently frowned on the proposition. Then his campaign manager started making charges that the Progressives were coercing WPA personnel for the party's campaign chest .Now Mr. Duffy faces an identical charge from the Republicans.

Gubernatorial contests are highlighted by Coalitionist Robert Henry's proposal to win both the Republican and Democratic primaries, intending to run in November on that ticket which gives him most votes, together with his supporting slate, if they can win the primary test too.

The Coalition effort defies predictions. Six months ago its prospects looked gloomy. Not a single politician of following or statewide influence had endorsed it. It was an idea of political small-fry, or in the words of politics, 'the rank and file".

But Henry, and his lieutenants, have put on an unexpectedly strong campaign, reportedly with little financing, and with no organization. These latter factors will be against him in the primary, where the Democrats will have an organization to nominate their candidate, Jerome Fox, and the Republicans, in some places at least, appear to have plenty of money.

Given Even Chance

However, most followers of state political trends give Henry an even chance to win the Republican nomination, where wealthy Julius P. Heil must contend for organization votes with James Peterson, supposed to have a strong rural following, and C. L. Miller of Madison, who is actively courting the veteran's vote.

Senator Duffy, among other things, is supposed to be worrying about Coalition, for if Henry wins the Democratic nomination, the senator would be running with an anti-New Dealer, which would be embarrassing because Duffy has tied his kite with the New Deal irretrievably.

There is another interesting slant to the primary campaign, and that is the opponent which has been presented Governor LaFollette in the person of Glenn P. Turner, perennial Socialist candidate for office.

You don't have to stand around long at a Progressive picnic these days to learn that Turner is going to get much more than the Socialist vote—usually about 40,000. He is going to get some of the votes of Progressives who fear a conservative switch in party policy, and a good many of those who think that the governor is getting too powerful and self-confident for his own good.

It will be remembered that Phil's national party venture was received with dubious enthusiasm in some sectors of his organization, even among some leaders of the state committee. To them, an opportunity to chastise the chief by voting for Turner will be most welcome.

Practically, however, the Turner candidacy will bring little except a private blush in the executive office now and then when the Socialist perennial hits a sore spot, for example, a review of the LaFollette pension platform before the old folks with a yen for bigger old age assistance checks.

Rules Warden Has Power to Search Car of Suspects

Madison — (AP) — A conservation warden, Attorney General Loomis held today, has power to search any automobile if he has reasonable cause to suspect a violation of the game laws. Positive knowledge that occupants of the car are hunting illegally is not necessary, he said.

The opinion was given to District Attorney Edmund Draeger of Vilas county in connection with a case involving an automobile throwing a light into the woods at night, apparently shining deer. A warden has authority to search such a car, Loomis held.

The attorney general also approved a conservation commission order making it illegal during certain seasons to be in possession of a gun shooting a 2 or larger calibre bullet. Loomis said the order provides for permits to be issued in individual cases. He said a person carrying a gun without a permit can be convicted without any showing that he was hunting illegally.

Freighter, Ore Carrier Grounded During Fog

Sault St. Marie, Mich. — (AP) — A package freighter and an iron ore carrier were sent aground near here Sunday by fog.

Great Lakes tugs went to the assistance of the Pitsburgh Steamship company's Governor Miller, hard aground abreast Round island in upper St. Mary's river.

The steamer Queen of the Minnesota and Atlantic Transit line ran aground on Detour reef off Detour, Mich., in heavy fog while upbound for St. Mary's river. She was leaking badly in two tanks, and called for assistance.

GLENN P. TURNER

Madison— Glenn P. Turner of Madison, candidate for governor on the Progressive ticket, is the first primary opponent Governor LaFollette has had since the formation of the Progressive party . . . born May 4, 1889 in Stockbridge. . . . "Washington was inaugurated on April 30, 1789, and is said to have begun business as president on May 4. If that is true I was born on the 100th anniversary of the beginning of business of the United States", he relates.

. . . son of a Methodist minister at Stockbridge, who also preached in the surrounding counties . . . schooled in West Allis and Milwaukee . . . graduated from the state university law school in 1916, the year he was elected to the assembly as a Social Democrat . . . served during the regular and two war sessions, where he introduced his first bill, to tax war profits . . . in 1924 campaigned for Robert M. LaLaFollette for president. . . "I have been a candidate for office more times than I can remember"—Always on the Socialist ticket, including among his opponents Justice Wickhem, Nelson, Fairchild and Matin of the state supreme court on the question of ending the judicial veto. . . .

. . . practices law in Madison. . . believes that "the machine is the friend of the man or group that own it. I want the proper government subdivision to own enough machines to put every young person at work and to give every old person a pension. I am, so far as I know, the only candidate for governor who subscribes to the official Progressive platform of 1936 . . . is something of a student of Lincoln and Jefferson, both of whom, were they living in Wisconsin today, he says, would join the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation . . . running as a Progressive, although he is a Socialist, because the Socialists lost their ticket identity when they joined with the Progressives in the FLPF two years ago. . . .

District Council Suspends Head of Milwaukee Union

President of Allis-Chalmers AUW Local to Face 'Trial'

Oshkosh —(AP)— The first district council of the United Automobile Workers union (CIO) Sunday formally suspended Harold Christoffel, president of the big Allis-Chalmers local of Milwaukee, and decided to replace him pending a "trial" on hcarges of being derelict in UAW board duty.

The council, with 112 delegates representing 49 locals in Wisconsin, northern Illinois and Minnesota, met here Sunday.

Spokesmen said a trial commission of seven had been named to hear the action against Christoffel, storm center of the Allis-Chalmers union's refusal to pay per capita dues to the UAW International The seven are Harvey Kitzman of Racine, John Schiefelbein of West Allis, Cliff Matche of Milwaukee, Leo Kosterman of Racine, Herbert Gatzke of Racine, and John Zastrow of Milwaukee.

The seven are to report their findings at the next council meeting, set for Sunday, Nov. 6, in La Crosse.

Spokesmen said the council adopted the report of the executive board backing the Racine Nash-Kelvinator local in its fight to prevent removal of the plant from Racine, and voiced support of the Harnischfeger corporation strikers in Milwaukee.

Cities represented were Minneapolis, La Crosse, Rockford, Chicago, Kenosha, West Bend, Wis., Milwaukee, Racine, and Oshkosh, delegates claiming 343 proxy votes, or one per 100 members.

No Excuse for Closed Plants, Nelson States

Milltown, Wis.—(AP)—"There is no excuse for having closed factories with millions of men and women unemployed when many families lack food and clothing, medical care, homes and other necessities," George Nelson, Progressive candidate for lieutenant governor, declared last night.

"Only a production-for-use economic system, such as advocated in the platform of the Farmer-Labor-Progressive Federation, can solve this condition," he said. Nelson also called for government action to raise the income of agriculture.

Relief Costs are Climbing to New Levels in State

Report Biggest Sustained Spending Program in Wisconsin History

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The biggest sustained spending program in the history of the commonwealth by federal, state and local governments, has resulted in an expenditure for public assistance in Wisconsin during the last three and one half years equal to $113.47 for every man, woman and child living in the state.

Thus can be dramatized the fact that Wisconsin's welfare bill during the last three and a half years has been run up to $332,000,000, or an amount which would have bought a 10 cent package of cigarrettes daily during the same period for every citizen of Wisconsin, youngsters and adults.

Figures for public assistance expenditures in Wisconsin in recent years were reported today by the public welfare department, which includes in that term aids for general relief, federal works programs, civilian conservation corps, social security, emergency subsistance grants, and surplus commodities distribution to the needy.

Pay Larger Share

Cost of all public assistance in Wisconsin during the first half of 1938, the department said, was $48,238,076—or about $16 per capita.

State and local units of government, moreover, paid about one third of the total bill, 32.5 per cent, more than they have been paying in previous years.

The federal government supplied 64.1 per cent of the expenses during the first quarter of this year, and 70.5 per cent during the second quarter—a smaller proportion than last year. An increase in local expenditures may mean that state and local governments will be forced to spend more than ever before since the long-time trend appears to shift an increasing proportion of the total cost upon them, state welfare experts pointed out.

Increases in local expenditures over 1937 is the result of larger burdens of general relief and social security demands. The value of local contributions to WPA projects, however, declined despite an increase in the number of men working on such projects.

During the first half of the present year, about 50 per cent of all local public assistance expenses went for general relief, compared with 45 per cent last year.

Public assistance costs generally decline during the late spring and early summer, but this year they have been increasing, the welfare department said.

Ekern Would Fight U. S. Participation in War

New Butler, Wis.—(AP)—Herman L. Ekern, candidate for the Progressive nomination for United States senator, said here last night that if elected he would "to the utmost of my power . . . oppose our country going to war."

"I believe in an army adequate to defend our shores, but I do not believe in transports to carry that army over seas," he said. "I believe that if foreign nations will feel immune from us, we will be quite immune from them.

"Our people, who in case of any war must do the suffering, fighting and dying, by their votes should decide on the question of war except to repel actual foreign invasion."

Says President's Foes Are Without Program

Marinette — (AP)—Jerome F. Fox, Democratic candidate for governor, speaking here yesterday, warned against "those who criticize the president without themselves offering any sort of a constructive program to replace his accomplishments and plans."

"The farmer, the laborer and the small business man know the president is doing his utmost to see that the common man is benefitted," he said. "The election of a Democratic administration in Wisconsin will insure the continuation and fulfillment of this national program."

Hearing Sept. 23 On Abandonment Of Rail Service

Commission to Determine If North Shore Violated State Law

Madison—(AP)—Calmer Browy, director of the state public service commission said today a hearing will be held at the Milwaukee county courthouse Sept. 23 to determine if the North Shore railroad had violated the state railroad abandonment law.

The statutes, Browy said, provide that railroads may not suspend service without first obtaining commission approval.

Service on the North Shore road was terminated Aug. 16 as a result of a disagreement between the management and employes over a proposed 15 per cent wage cut.

What action the commission may take in the event it finds the suspension a violation has not been decided, Browy said, adding that if was possible the case might be turned over to the attorney general's office or the Milwaukee county district attorney. The commission will proceed as a fact-finding body.

Hearing Aug. 19

It conducted an informal hearing in the controversy Aug. 19 but determined then no action would be taken because "no emergency" existed and other adequate facilities were available.

Browy said a request was received meantime from 10 Kenosha firms for assistance in restoring service between Milwaukee and Chicago.

"The commission conducted a private probe three weeks ago and decided at that time there was no reason for an immediate investigation," Browy said. "The present long interruption of service, of course, alters the situation."

The wage cut was authorized by Federal Judge William M. Sparks, of Chicago, upon the plea of Colonel A. A. Sprague, receiver for the road, that insufficient funds were available to continue current wages. The employes, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, objected to the reduction.

Waukesha, Wis. —(AP)— The Waukesha county vice - investigating grand jury, scheduled to reconvene today, will not do so until Sept. 26. Steinle in turn declared there was "an abundance" of evidence for the jury.

Complete Field Work for Inventory of State Land

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Publication of maps and bulletins for the Fox river valley counties, giving precise details of land resources and cover for every township, will depend on the magnanimity of the state legislature next January, Earl D. Hilburn explained today as he announced that field work in the 10-year task of taking a land economic inventory of Wisconsin had been completed.

The material gathered by WPA field workers during the last several years in the Fox river valley counties is now being rechecked in the field, Hilburn, project supervisor, said. The material can be used as a basis for county zoning, for purposes of locating types of timber and land, for conservation department activities, to check assessed tax valuations, for school alotments, for the determination of valuations for taxes and loans to local governmental units, and a variety of other purposes, it was explained.

Trained Workers

Under the project the land has been mapped by trained workers who traverse each square mile four times with the aid of compass, protractor, and scale. They carefully note forest cover, lay of the land, the uses to which it is put, and improvements.

"An inventory of all land and land cover in the state was necessary in order to arrive at an inlteligent land-use program," according to Hilburn.

Careful study of land cover often reveals a clue to the type of soil underneath, he added. For example, hemlock seems to harm soils while the decaying leaves of birch and maple tend to improve it. Pines will prosper on light soils where oak will be scrubby.

Funds Available for Low-Cost Housing Program at Madison

Washington — (AP) — The United States Housing authority said today funds were available for a low-cost housing program at Madison, Wis., and recommended prompt submission of a formal application by that city's newly-created housing board.

"We will set aside funds if its application, when submitted, is found to be in proper form," said Administrator Nathan Straus.

He said the USHA had forwarded information how to proceed, together with application blanks to the local authority.

Straus said he welcomed Madison's "entry into the housing picture," inasmuch as only one other community in Wisconsin has established a local authority and received an allocation of funds to date. He referred to Superior, for which $675,000 was set aside several weeks ago.

The administrator added he foresaw the possibility other cities, notably Milwaukee, would follow the example of Madison and Superior and take steps to participate in the $800,000,000 federal housing program.

Heil Wants Poor House Removed From Nation

Milwaukee—(AP)—Julius P. Heil, Republican candidate for governor, said here last night that he would like to see the poor house removed from this nation.

"I would like to see aged men and women, and others requiring aid, left in the homes in which they spent their lives, with sufficient funds supplied to meet their moderate needs," he said. "We must take care of them in a decent way, without casting a 'poor house' stigma upon them."

New Progressive Party Excluded From Poll Jobs

Madison —(AP)— Attorney General O. S. Loomis ruled today the new national Progressive party has no claim to appointment of precinct election officials this year.

He told District Attorney James Cullen of Crawford county, the mere fact that Progressives formed a national organization in 1938 does not change the effect of the supreme court decision that election officials must be chosen according to the vote cast by the two dominating parties in the president returns of 1936. Under this decision the appointments went to Democrats and Republicans.

"Since the Progressive party was not then a national party and accordingly had no candidate for president, the decision of the court results in its being excluded from being one of the two dominating parties," the attorney general said. "The test is not whether a party has national status now but whether it had a presidential candidate at the last election."

The supreme court decided that the vote for governor can be used in determining party dominance only in non-presidential years. The Progressives had the biggest vote for governor in 1936.

Business, Professional Men are Unanimous in Support of Sales Drive

Business and professional men are unanimous in the opinion that the stimulus afforded business by the "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade will give it a definite upward turn toward the ultimate goal — prosperity. The purpose of the recovery drive is the prying loose of curtailed buying power into channels of trade so that new business will create new jobs.

"All business cycles, whether a depression or a boom are, in part, psychological," according to Dr. T. N. Barrows, president of Lawrence college. "There is considerable evidence," he said, "that at the moment actual economic conditions are improved. Psychological attitudes of people are inter-acting to the extent that increased business activity in the community improves our frame of mind and if this increased activity results from sound purchases of needed goods, it cannot help but aid in recovery. Anything which stimulates an economy of abundance rather than an economy of scarcity is a good thing."

Must Overcome Complex

"Our negative complex must be overcome," explained D P. Steinberg," and in its place we must instill an assurance that the future will be brighter by reason of sales ultimately to create jobs. The 'Sales Mean Jobs' crusade is put forth to create confidence in the minds of purchasers so that ultimately they will gain satisfaction through the purchase in the thought that they will be creating jobs that would not otherwise exist if the sales were not made."

Carl S. McKee is firmly convinced that the rewards of business go to the aggressive, the imaginative, the capable — the men who are willing to try. He suggests that the businessmen have cried long enough and that it is time to get out and get busy. "A good deal depends on the salespeople," said McKee, "for what is needed at present is a general loosening-up of buying power. This can be done only when people change their outlook and begin to talk prosperity instead of depression. The 'Sales Mean Jobs' crusade can help a great deal in accomplishing this."

The view expressed by Dr. J. B. MacLaren carried the idea that the "Sales Mean Jobs" recovery drive could stimulate sales to a large extent thus releasing the great store of pent-up purchasing power.

Sales Are First Problem

"It is self-evident," he said, "that if you can't sell goods, you can't manufacture them. When people fail to continue buying to refill their ordinary needs, the wheels of progress become cluttered up. Sales are the first problem to be coped with in building up a business. While a retail merchant keeps his stock on the shelves of his store, we professional men keep ours in our heads. When progress is retarded our business is affected in the same way as the merchants. Once buying power is accelerated, business will go forward for everybody."

According to A. H. Krugmeier the basic idea of the "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade — that of stimulating sales to promote jobs — is a sound one. "The whole idea," he says, "is based on the assumption that the present depression is a psychological one — prolonged because people are instilled with fear. This lack of buying has caused a slowing down of all business. When people change their tune to one of anticipation of better times and decide to really do something about it, prosperity will return."

Still another professional man rallied to the "Sales Mean Jobs" drive when Dr. L. H. Moore declared that he thought the crusade was a very worthwhile endeavor to cure unemployment ills through the medium of stimulated sales. "The advantages of the recovery campaign are obvious," he said, "for its basic philosophy has a sound economic foundation."

Affidavits of non-registered voters will be accepted by the city clerk during regular office hours and including election day. When the signed affidavit is presented to the clerk, he will give the voter a certificate which must be presented by the voter at the precinct polling place.

Ballots of absentee voters must be mailed to the city clerk so that they will reach him not later than election day. The procedure used for absentee voting applies to registered voters who will be out of the city or unable to go to a polling place Sept. 20.

An application for a ballot must be filled out, signed by a notary public and returned to the city clerk. On receipt of the application, absentee ballots will be returned to the applicant. Collie

Rough-coated Collie's ancestry is as old as sheep-herding itself. Name from Anglo-Saxon "col" meaning black. Scotch called them "colley dogs" after the black-faced "colley" sheep they tended. Noted for acute hearing, extraordinary homing sense, devotion to duty.

He's giving his nerves a rest... and so is he

THIS Collie dog has a nervous system that is remarkably similar to yours. Like yours it is delicate, complicated. But here is where a big difference comes in: The dog can spring into flashing action — and then relax. While man's nature makes him unkind to his nerves. All too often, we work too hard, worry too much, are fatigued or sleepless from strain. Nerves cry for rest, but we do not hear. Don't let tension "get" your nerves. Give your nerves a frequent rest—a soothing breathing spell—take time for a Camel. Camels help you to remember that you need a brief bit of leisure, for they are mild and mellow, a supremely enjoyable cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos. Smokers find that "Let up — light up a Camel" puts more joy into living, and that Camel's costlier tobaccos are mild and soothing to their nerves.

It's the little breaks in daily nerve tension that help to keep a fellow on top. Smoking a Camel gives me a feeling of well-being. Here is a cigarette that is soothing to my nerves!"

MISS OLLIE TUCKER (left), office manager, says: "I can't afford to get nervous. My method is to let up, and light up a Camel. It's a grand way to smooth out tense nerves. I smoke Camels a lot. They're so mild and flavory. Camels are soothing to my nerves. Most of my friends who seem always at ease prefer Camels."

Kaws Display Defensive Strength Against Chilton

Kaukauna — Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna High school gridders engaged in their annual practice battle with Chilton Saturday and came off somewhat better than usual. No official score was kept, but the Kaws pushed over two touchdowns to one for Chilton.

Everyone saw action as Little sought a starting lineup for the first game of the year next Saturday here against North high of Sheboygan. The play of both teams was ragged, and it appears that Little has the nucleus of a good defensive club but will worry a bit about scoring on the other team.

Saturday's starting lineup saw John Wandell and Bill Alger at ends, Sherman Powers and Leroy Frank at tackles, John Velte and Cliff Femal at guards and Leo Wolfe at center. In the backfield were Carl Kobussen, Carl Giordana, Clayton Watson and Joe Regenfuss.

Chilton Scores First

Chilton took the ball to start things and went for a touchdown, using more line plays. Their pass for the extra point was good. Kaukauna came back and also scored with Danner running about 20 yards for the touchdown. Watson's dropkick was good. Carl Giordana later ran the ball over for the second Kaw score.

Other backs who saw service besides the starters were George Steffens, Danner Willis Ranquette and Bob Niesen. Steffens showed an improvement over last year and may be in for some action this season.

The Kaws lose no time in picking on the tough ones after the non-conference opener, traveling to Neenah for their first conference game. The Kaws gained a narrow victory over the Red Rockets here last year with a better eleven than they have now. Neenah is well stocked with veterans this season, and if the Kaws win it will be an upset.

It Is Said--

That workers at the Electric City brewery, Kaukauna, are still laughing over a remark made by a bystander last week in all seriousness. Small bottles had been run through and were still coming out on the conveyor into the pasteurizing tank. At the same time all shapes of larger bottles were being fed into the mechanism

"That's quite an invention you have there," the foreman was told. When the boss asked what was meant the visitor replied, "It's wonderful the way you put all shapes of bottles in that machine and have them come out shrunk down to a small size."

Real Issue in Maryland Primary Is Hidden in Arguments Over Trifles

Washington—A cynical diplomat once said that the purpose of language was to obscure thought rather than to reveal it. Similarly politics seems to operate so as to obscure issues instead of clarifying them. Certainly it is working that way in the Maryland senatorial primary.

Here, if ever, was an opportunity for a clear-cup showdown on New Deal policies. Senator Tydings voted repeatedly against his party. Opposing him, Congressman David J. Lewis stands on a record of progressive action which goes far back beyond the days of the New Deal. These men, both able, stand out as clear-cut types, the one a convinced and consistent reactionary, the other a convinced and consistent liberal. Both are men of courage — both voted against the soldier bonus. Lewis is no more of a rubber stamp than Tydings. It was a perfect test of principles and outlook.

Raymond Clapper

But a Maryland voter, following this Tydings-Lewis fight, would have to be a mind-reader to find out that the issue is between these two points of view. Both candidates, and their supporting speakers, have wandered off into a furious battle over trivialities, innuendo and ten-cent controversies. Both sides have sunk down into irrevelant details.

At times it is difficult to tell from the campaign speeches who is running Tydings harps about some ex-newspaperman who is working for Lewis and calls him a communist. That was the big Tydings issue for a while. Then Tydings complains of the senate campaign investigating committee about a little 90-pound postmistress at Salisbury, Md., because she is pulling for Lewis. She is defended in a broadcast speech by Lewis as the Molly Pitcher of Maryland. It was the big issue for 24 hours. At other times you'd think Tydings was running against Drew Pearson, the newspaper columnist, or against a dairy farmer in Montgomery county, Md., Eugene Casey. Tydings actually devotes campaign speeches to these people as if he were running against them.

Latest Debate is Over The In-Laws of Tydings

Lewis makes campaign speeches against the Baltimore Sun. Hours of talk about where the Sun stood when it was supporting Lewis for congress and how it is now throwing curve balls to help Tydings. Who cares? The latest issue in the campaign is the in-laws of Tydings. It's a long, intricate story but, in brief, Tydings married the daughter of Ambassador Joseph Davies and about the same time Davies married the heiress of General Foods. Lewis campaigners charge that Tydings responded to the influence of his in-laws to block a senate milk investigation. On behalf of Tydings the retort is made that Joe Davies and his wife contributed heavily to Roosevelt's two campaigns so that if Tydings is tainted so is Roosevelt. Another issue: Did Tydings wangle a WPA project to improve his Maryland estate or did he not? Days of campaigning were devoted to this.

All the while there lay the real issue of the campaign, hardly noticed by either side. Do the Maryland Democrats want for their senator a man who consistently opposed Roosevelt or do they want one who goes down the same path? That's the only real question at stake but you have to stop listening and do your own thinking to discover it.

Real Issue For Lewis Is Tyding's Vote Record

The real issue for Lewis is the Tydings vote record in the senate. On some 24 important policy votes during the Roosevelt administration, Tydings voted with the Republicans all except seven times. He was against the administration 17 times. Compare this with the record of a fellow purgee, Senator George of Georgia, who was against the administration nine times on the same votes. If there is any issue which shows the attitude of Tydings it is on social security. His nerve failed him in this pinch. He refused to vote for it and he refused to vote against it, as five Republicans did. He just voted present.

But he was with the administration on one issue, the killing of the Hatch amendment to the relief bill to forbid use of WPA in politics. Tydings and his manager, Senator Radcliffe, have controlled Maryland patronage under the Roosevelt administration and Tydings didn't want to affront his boys—and possibly hamstring them—by supporting the Hatch amendment. So he helped kill it off as the administration desired. Tydings was with the administration that time—when the administration was at its worst. He could revise the slogan of other anti-administration democrats and say he had been against the administration when it was right and with it when it was wrong.

What's New at the Library

The story of how, because a Boston dentist experimented with ether on animals and then on himself, anesthesia came into practical use is told in "Triumph Over Pain" by Rene Fulop-Miller which was received at Appleton Public library last week. The book relates mankind's age-old struggle with the problem of physical suffering from the dawn of history until in 1846 when a Boston dentist administered ether for the first official painless operation of the world. In less than five years from that date, surgery was completely reformed. The author is a Hungarian scholar and writer, the author of many books among which is "Rasputin, the Holy Devil."

O. O. McIntyre, the man whose daily column was printed in more newspapers than any other feature yet whose private life was least known of any man in his field, is the subject of a biography by Charles B. Driscoll who was his editor for many years. The highest paid writer in the world, McIntyre walked in terror of poverty and tried to provide against it by building in Callipolis, Ohio, a house he was never to enter alive. The book has a foreword by Major Edward Bowes of radio fame.

Except for a volume of Negro spirituals, "Cowboy Songs and Other Frontier Ballads" collected by John A. and Alan Lomax was the first copyrighted collection of native American ballads. The original music for the songs was taken down with a crude phonograph using wax cylinders from the singing of cowboys on the range and around campfires, much of it hitherto unpublished.

Jack London whose adventure stories have thrilled hundreds of readers, young and old, is pictured against the background of the America of his time in "Sailor on Horseback" by Irving Stone. Novelist, adventurer and revolutionist, London was a fabulous and eccentric figure who started life delivering newspapers, working on an ice wagon and setting up pins in a bowling alley, reading voraciously all of the time. His biographer says that he was almost the first American author to become loved in Europe.

Gladys Brown Denison, field worker for the Children's Home and Aid society of Wisconsin who works out of Green Bay, is the author of a volume of poetry which is now on the shelves at the library. It is "Smoke Around the Sun," and is a collection of poems which have appeared in such publications as Poetry World, The Family, America Singing, American Lyric Poetry and others. The character poem is conspicuous in her work, the themes being Negro life and proletarian life. One poem describes the new fashioned revivalism of Father Divine and his cohorts.

Tracing the world forces undermining democracy, Nicholas Roosevelt in his book, "A New Birth of Freedom," shows that America is not immune to the contagion of reactionary ideas and points out how well suited the American federal system is to the preservation of democracy and political liberalism. He closes by saying that no political and economic reforms can be effective unless there is a spiritual revival in America, a new faith in the old ideals which made America great.

THE COALITION TICKET

The immediate aim of the Coalition Ticket is the defeat of Governor LaFollette. That is the work-a-day purpose without frills or furbelows.

But irrespective of immediate aim or purpose, or the personalities that flit across the scene, the principle at work in the endeavor is pure to the point of unassailability. For the principle is majority rule. And any legitimate attempt anywhere or any time to obtain majority rule is worthy from every standpoint.

Young Mr. Fox must know he hasn't any chance of success on the Democratic ticket. But there seems to be some gratification to men in just running for office however badly they are soaked. Perhaps they obtain a thrill when someone says, "That fellow ran for Governor."

The same observation may be made concerning Mr. Heil on the Republican ticket, only more so. Mr. Heil is old enough to know better. But the years sometimes have a weakening instead of a strengthening effect. The gentleman is said to belong to the old-fashioned school who believe in finishing off careers by serving the public in some honorable position and bringing brilliant business experience into the service of the public.

With both Messrs. Fox and Heil, however much they may think otherwise, their own personal considerations are more important than any principle at stake or in the Government.

Both spend long hours on the platform denouncing Governor LaFollette, vilifying his record, impugning his motives, And then so act as to make certain his re-election.

Pride, greed—and there is greed for distinction as well as money,—and many other charactertistics most often associated with little men, take their fearful toll upon the public service, prevent very often majority rule and make the imps on earth and elsewhere laugh in derision at the efforts to improve, cleanse and strengthen Democracy.

HE SPAKE THE TRUTH

Raymond Richards delivered himself of an unusual Labor Day address in Green Bay as organized labor celebrated its annual holiday.

The theme of Mr. Richard's talk was that labor unions must develop a sense of responsibility and fairness if they are to prosper.

And Mr. Richards spoke from personal experience, for the pulp and sulphite workers union of which he is international vice president does not have a single strike in progress today in any of its mills on the North American continent.

Organized labor in the United States has come a long way since the days of the Knights of Labor. It has learned one of the cardinal principles of employe-employer relationship, that it must be strongly organized to be able to bargain effectively. It knows that it must have a large percentage of the workers in a plant enroled before it can achieve concrete results. It knows that calling a strike without such organization is suicide.

But some groups of organized labor have still to learn the other cardinal principle. That is that labor unions must be just as responsible as the employers are, that they must have level-headed, forceful yet tactful officers, that their mightiest weapon is public opinion, and that in order to win that approval they must avoid the strong arm and the red flag.

Throughout the history of the labor movement there have been those pink-tongued orators who have tried to tell labor that its greatest enemy is its employer, that the working man is made different from the man he works for, that the two belong to a separate class.

We need more labor officers like Mr. Richards to break down this brash superstition and to convince the laboring man and the employer that cooperation, understanding of each other's problems, and compromise is the road to economic peace and security for all concerned.

EXPLOITING BABIES

The statute books show a considerable number of laws forbidding cruelty to dumb animals. They also contain a number of conservation laws of similar purpose, such as those prohibiting certain kinds of traps the use of which is regarded as cruel to wild animals.

Strangely, equal solicitude has not been incorporated for the treatment of certain classes of human beings such as, for instance, children and infants to whom we are often quite inconsiderate in order to satisfy our own desires.

We take them to the movies and keep them up long after their bedtime, giving them an angry glare or covert pinch when they grow weary and begin to cry. We trundle them down the street in a buggy carriage with the sun beating down on their faces. We take them on exhaustingly—for them—long automobile drives, and punish them when they become restless and want to go home.

A recent example occurred in a Bronx school where some 500 impatient parents gathered to enter their offsping in a child beauty contest for youngsters up to seven years of age. The contest was scheduled to be decided by applause from the audience. The youngsters were paraded across the platform several times. The judging went on for hours. Parents whose children were eliminated insisted on putting them back on the platform for another try.

Obviously, an event of this kind could not contribute to the happiness, entertainment and health of the children. It bored, exhausted and frightened them. The little girl selected as the most attractive fell asleep during her "coronation." All were subjected to the health risks which are present in any large gathering.

The only result of the contest was the edification of the parents whose children were chosen.

Making circus shows with youngsters is another form of cruelty which certainly ought to be outlawed, since some parents are so intent on feeding their vanity that they disregard the welfare and comfort of their children.

SAPPY SUGGESTION

High government officials, it is reported, are urging President Roosevelt to fight fire with fire through the employment of secret agents (spies, if you will) who are to be commissioned to look into the matter of un-American activity.

A Washington correspondent comments rather gingerly upon the suggestion. And no wonder! He does not name the "high officials" and it is not likely they would thank him if he did!

An old adage runs that "where there is smoke there must be fire" and a considerable number of persons "have the wind up," as the British say so quaintly, about disclosures made before the Dies committee.

But one is privileged to doubt whether "un-American acitivities" have too greatly weakened this Nation's foundations. A good deal of shouting about this crisis and that is heard, always, around election time.

Just by way of quieting the too timorous, may a statement of fact for which there is adequate support be entered in the record?

The statement is this: The intelligence service of the United States' Army and Navy are second to none in the world; the agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation get around; some millions of service men who have proved their love of country are not entirely dumb.

Probably there is skulduggery on the part of "agents" whose sympathies clash with ours. Once in a while we catch up with one of them. The chances are that if an "agent" is really dangerous there are dossiers about him, held ready to hand, that will prod his memory about affairs concerning himself that even he has forgotten.

A citizen ought to be privileged to resent the suggestion that we are timid, defenseless lambs in a world of snarling wolves.

We may not appear to be too bright but we do manage to find out what is going on.

FROM RAG TO SWING

Assuming that there still is a considerable percentage of the national population which cannot be classed with the swing music jitterbugs, the recent statement of W. C. Handy will be good news for a great many persons.

And coming from W. C. Handy, the news is also authoritative. Mr. Handy, it will be remembered, is the composer of "St. Louis Blues."

Mr. Handy says that "swing" is not a definite form of music and that, whatever it is, it will soon pass as have countless other fads in music.

Since no one has ever given a clear definition of swing music, Mr. Handy's observation does not seem likely to be challenged seriously although it may be resented by the jitterbugs. For them the recounting of an experience of Mr. Handy's with one piece he composed should—but probably will not—cause them to do a little analyzing of the music which moves them to new versions of the St. Vitus dance. Mr. Handy happened to write "Yellow Dog Rag" just at the time when interest in "blues" music was at fever pitch. As "Yellow Dog Rag" earned only $200 for one year, Mr. Handy decided on a little experimenting and changed the name to "Yellow Dog Blues". In the year following the piece earned $25,000, though it was the same tune that had earned only $200 as a "rag". Now Mr. Handy is considering changing the name to "Yellow Dog Swing." If he does the jitterbugs will no doubt seize upon the tune as something new and something definitely "swing" even though not a note nor beat is changed.

The term Czechoslovakia refers to two national groups of inhabitants, the Czechs and the Slovaks, both distinct branches of Slav origin.

A pound of soap dissolved in a gallon of hot water and added to five gallons of whitewash will give the whitewash a glossy appearance.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—Grant's Tomb, looking quietly down on Riverside Drive, has been air-conditioned.

It will make curious folk a little more comfortable as they visit the mausoleum and stroll through the two reliquaries which, opening from the main hall, are filled with battleflags and other Grantania.

The body of the General is protected by three coffins, one of copper, and has rested in the $600,000 Tomb 41 years. In those 41 years, the soul of the General, if it could have looked from the cupola of the Tomb, could have seen warships steaming down the Hudson bound for Cuba and a war with Spain; and hospital ships, and funeral ships, returning; and long distance swimmers with greased bodies, struggling to set some sort of record which weren't important; and gay regattas; and the Albany Night Boat, and the yachts of millionaires and the rowboats of weather-beaten rivermen; and the stacks of ocean liners, proud and luxurious; and cash registers playing prestissimo at the Jersey end of the George Washington Bridge, where every passing motorcar must pay fifty cents for the privilege of entering or leaving Manhattan; and ferryboats, loaded with commuters from New Jersey; and garishly camouflaged transport ships carrying American youth to Europe and a War to End War.

There is another body buried on the Drive. It rests in a seldom-noticed grave on the river side of Grant's Tomb. In it sleeps a child whose bones were dust even before Grant smoked his first cigar or took his whisky neat.

The story they tell is that many years ago the land where Grant's Tomb now stands, and hundreds of acres all around it, was owned by a man named Pollock. One day the Pollock child, only five years old, was drowned in the Hudson.

The body was buried in the soft shade of two trees. Pollock's land was later sold, but always with the proviso that under no circumstances was the grave to be disturbed.

It is the grave of "an amiable child."

Ulysses S. Grant was a warrior and a ruler—a General and a President. He came at the end to a $600,000 tomb—air-conditioned. His memory is written in the blood of battlefields.

The world has long since forgotten the little fellow sleeping so close by. He shed no blood. He ruled no land. His only epitaph is: "An Amiable Child."

It isn't much of an epitaph, yet somehow I think my humble flowers would rest more happily there.

Either People are absurd or I am. They spend $600,000 to entomb a Grant. They spent a mere $175,000 for the memorial at Columbus Circle to the men who died when the battleship Maine was destroyed. They spent only $250,000 for the Memorial on Riverside Drive at 89th Street to the Soldiers and Sailors.

Even the Statue of Liberty, symbolic of the very essence of Americanism, cost the French people (who gave it to us) barely $150,000 more than did the mausoleum to Grant.

And the monument marking the burial place in Oak Ridge cemetery, Springfield, Ill., of Abraham Lincoln—Grant's commander-in-chief—cost a paltry $200,000.

Consistency, thou art a jewel.

Broadway farmers will have an exhibit at the New Jersey State fair at Trenton this fall. There is actually only one farm in Manhattan—a rather pitiful agricultural offering. There are hundreds of Broadway farmers, however—gents who work under the gilt paint of the Lighted Lane but whose hearts are out beyond the city limits on a few acres of land where on weekends they water a tomato plant or two, sprinkle a rosebush and behave bucolically. These are the Broadway Farmers who will proudly exhibit their stuff at the New Jersey State Fair. If it serves no other purpose, it may give the real farmers a laugh.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, Sept. 10, 1928

Carl Gerhardt, treasurer of the Red Cross chapter at Neenah, was to give a talk on "Chapter Roll Call" at a regional conference which was to be held Sept. 13 at Fond du Lac.

Miss Dorothy Krippner, art supervisor in Appleton Public schools, had returned from Europe where she spent the summer on the Lorado Taft art pilgrimage. About 250 art students made up the pilgrimage.

William Harwood, Kaukauna, was high gun man at the Northeastern Wisconsin Gun Shoot held at the Kaukauna Gun club Sunday. He shot 98 out of a possible 100 birds.

John Chapman was the only Menasha resident summoned for jury service at Oshkosh during the September term of circuit court. Neenah had three representatives, John Aylward, Mrs. Dio Dunham and Mrs. A. J. Du Bois.

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, Sept. 15, 1913

Miss Carrie E. Morgan and Miss Mable Berg left yesterday for Madison to attend the meeting of the industrial school teachers.

Emery Greunke, James Donnelly and Raymond Hartung, Appleton High school graduates, were to leave for Madison the following Monday to enter the University of Wisconsin.

The contract for the Hackworth Construction company to supervise the construction of the pumping station was signed that morning. Work was then in the progress of pulling down the walls and getting the forms ready for concrete work.

The following day was to be the entry day for what was undisputedly the biggest Fox River Valley fair ever held. The biggest attendance in history was expected and all stores and factories were to close Thursday in order that employes could attend the annual event.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE ADOPTED BABY
(For Michael)

She holds her adopted baby
For the first time to her heart,
And dreams of new days of splendor
Of which he will be a part.
Already the house is changing . . .
His bottles are on the stove.
And standing in her white bedroom
Is a nest for the little dove.

Her eyes hold a dream of gladness.
She knows that his chubby hand
Will cling to her own. . . . Beside her
A dear little boy will stand!
Because he will be her comrade.
The future seems kind and good.
She sees the long years unfolding
In the light of her motherhood.

She holds her adopted baby.
And sings him a sleepy song.
The mystical hour of twilight
Is when all the best dreams throng.
She feels in her arms a burden
She prays she may ever keep.
As in the angelic stillness
Her baby falls fast asleep!

A Bystander In Washington

While Preston Grover is on vacation, persons prominent in official and political life of the nation and in journalism are substituting for him. Today's guest column is written—

BY REAR ADMIRAL EMORY S. LAND
Chairman, U. S. Maritime Commission

Washington — Tucked away in the Merchant Marine act, passed by congress in June, 1936, is a little word of tremendous importance. That word is "Parity."

Even though it occurs only in the law, "Parity" is the fundamental idea behind the policy congress established when it wrote the act. It is the most important word in the act.

It is now the policy of the American government to put American ship operators on a parity of cost with their foreign competitors. That does not mean assuring American operators any "margin of profit" advantages over their competitors. It makes them even on reasonable costs.

The ship owners of foreign nations can build and operate their ships cheaper than Americans in the first place, and in the second, foreign governments themselves are committed to huge subsidies to keep their flags in the ports of the world and thereby guarantee the constant flow of raw and manufactured products to and from the homeland.

These things have been said so many times that they may seem trite to some people. By saying them again I may be in the position of a father I heard about who said to his son at dinner:

"Son, after dinner, I want you to come in the library with me to discuss a serious problem. I wish to discuss with you the facts of life."

After dinner the son courteously ushered his father to the library, permitted the old gentleman to precede him through the door, then closed the door and said:

"Now, Dad, just what the hell do you want?"

The prosperity of half our inland population is directly dependent upon foreign trade. Surplus farm products must be disposed of abroad. Many manufacturers must market abroad to maintain large production and keep the unit cost low at home. Furthermore, 25,000,000 Americans (one-sixth of the population, actually derive their livelihood, directly or indirectly, from our foreign trade.

American ships are now carrying only 35 per cent of our waterborne commerce. In an emergency, such as war, we may find ourselves with a scarcity of ships because foreign nations would withdraw their ships for their own particular use. We were in just that bad spot in 1914. We spent tremendous sums trying to overcome this deficiency. It is far more practical and economical to build a definite number of ships each year and maintain them in essential commerce trade routes.

It is such a program of replacement the maritime commission is now launched upon. From the standpoint of national defense, the navy department, after a careful inventory, has estimated that the minimum needs for this purpose will be 500 new ships of various types within the next 10 years. Approximately the same number are required to service essential trade routes.

Since the first of this year, orders have been placed for 37 new ships, consisting of 12 tankers, 20 cargo vessels, one passenger liner for the United States lines for use in the North Atlantic and four cargo ships for the American Export lines to be operated in the North Atlantic-Mediterranean and Black Sea trade.

Thus, the first year's quota of 50 ships is not only within reach but before the end of the year the number should go over the quota.

In October, the commission will inaugurate a new and fast luxury passenger liner service to the east coast of South America with the Virginia, the California and the Pennsylvania, to be renamed respectively Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina.

A growing spirit of cooperation pervades the relationships between the government and the shipping industry. Labor conditions are constantly improving. Schools of training for both officers and unlicensed seamen have been initiated by the commission.

Our merchant marine is under way to restoration and world prestige.

If You Don't Like Name Of Town—Write to Board

Washington (AP) — Anybody who doesn't like the name of a river, creek or hill—or for that matter any geographical formation in his vicinity, might get the name changed if he wrote to the United States Board of Geographical names.

That's the board which held President Roosevelt was entitled to use the name Krum Elbow for his Hudson river estate.

The board staff has been busy since 1890, when government surveyors and mapmakers convinced Congress that too many places and geographical formations in the United States had too many different names. Now, when the board speaks, a geographical name is final.

The research staff of the board leans heavily on local usage for names, but in case of dispute the argument is carried back through musty historical records until the evidence for a certain name is conclusive.

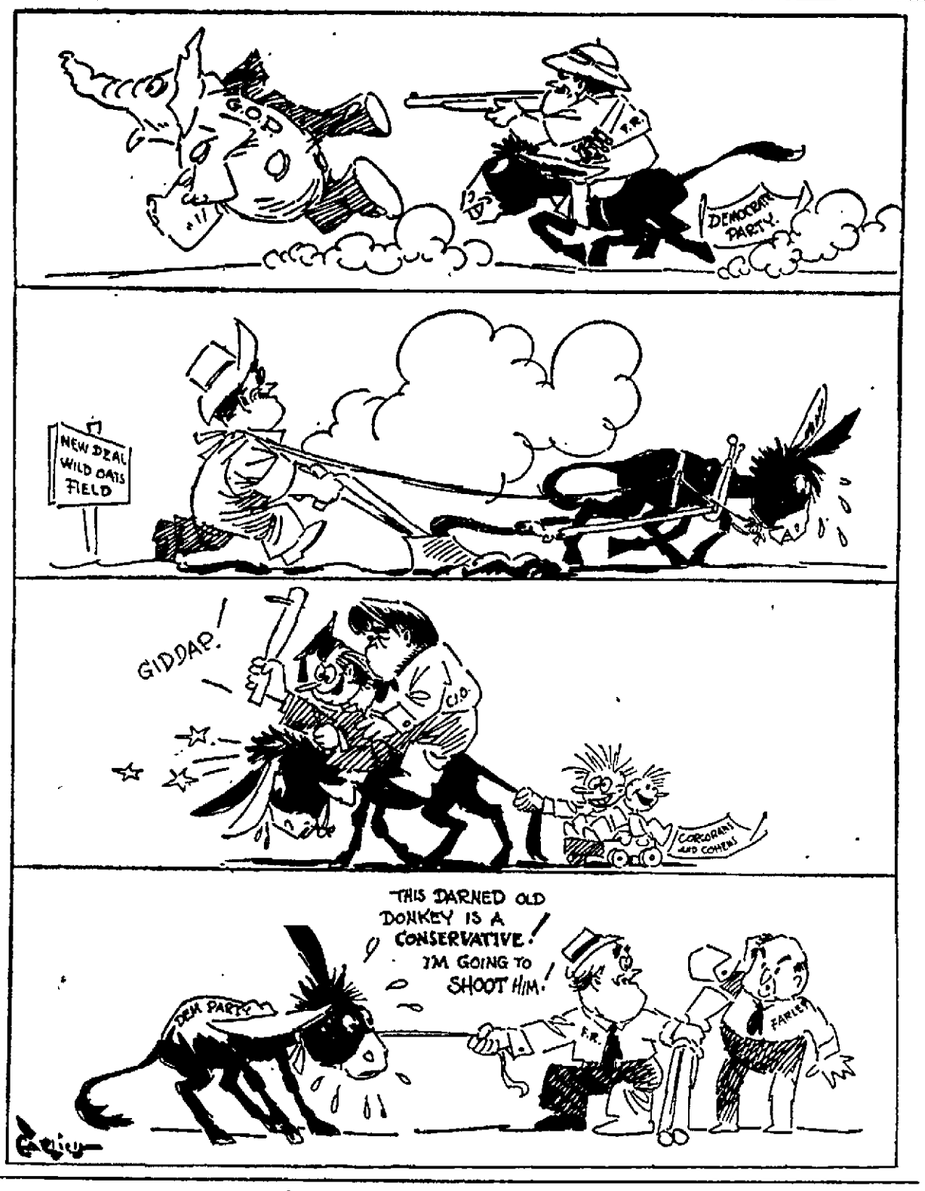

And don't think it's easy work. Last year alone the board had to settle disputes over the names of 125 geographical formations in Chesapeake bay alone.

CAME CLOSE TOGETHER

Taylorville, Ill. —(AP)— Local doctors expressed amazement when Mrs. Joseph Strickland gave birth to a daughter three days after an appendectomy. They said cases of normal birth so soon after an operation are extremely rare.

Mother and babe were reported "doing well."

THE REWARD OF LONG AND FAITHFUL SERVICE

What Is Your News I.Q.?

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair; 80 good. Answers on market page.

1. This man is Britain's ambassador to Berlin. Can you name him?
2. Name the candidate who beat Senator McAdoo for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California.
3. What is Skoda? Where is it?
4. What famous airplane designer hung up the latest New York-Los Angeles plane record?
5. To what Jews does Italy's newly promulgated expulsion order apply?

Your Birthday

"VIRGO"

If September 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m.; from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m.; from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m.; and from 9:45 to 11:56 p. m.

Do not be influenced by superstitious beliefs this day. Any feeling of apprehension or fear, is apt to be purely a product of your imagination, and without any justification. There will be many cases of honest differences of opinions, so do not be offended if anyone refuses to subscribe to any idea you might advance. It will be good judgment to avoid discussing religion or politics, for apparently many quarrels will originate, from loss of tempers, over one or the other of the foregoing subjects. You should think along liberal lines this day, and to be broadminded in your utterances. Important issues may come up, or be discussed, so it might pay you to keep your ears opened. This day requires your being cautious in discussing your private personal affairs in public places, for you might discover that "walls have ears." Married and engaged couples, and those whose love affairs are progressing in a satisfactory manner, must be careful not to appear to be upset over unavoidable delays or belated excuses.

If a woman and September 13 is your birthday, you most likely have very few definite dislikes for people, food or popular mediums of entertainment. You may impress many people with your sincerity, particularly in your professions of friendship. Anyone who tries to take advantage of you, thinking you are easy-going, soon discovers his or her mistake. Your frankness, at times, is likely to be very disconcerting to casual acquaintances, who have rubbed you the wrong way. Through library, missionary, research, clerical or dramatic work your efficiency and ability are likely to win you the respect and confidence of those with whom you are associated. Marriage may make your home and social life all that you could possibly wish them to be.

The child born on September 13 often must be studied to be understood, for it is liable to be somewhat of a dreamer, very sensitive, with frequently some unique aspirations, worthy of development, as well as encouragement.

If a man and September 13, is your natal day, whatever you undertake is likely to be a moneymaker. You, in all likelihood, believe in action, not words. As an educator, clergyman, journalist, artist, actor, sales agent, architect, lawyer or physician there appears to be a good chance of your becoming an unqualified success.

Successful People Born on September 13:

John Scudder, Missionary in India.

William Henry Rinehart, Sculptor.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

FOR WEAK ANKLES

Four hundred years ago Vesalius, anatomist and surgeon, prescribed an inverted pig trough for patients with weak ankles, pronated feet, early flat feet, to walk on. Later the pig trough was relinquished to the pigs and either a ridge board or lifts under the inner borders of soles and heels, gave the same effect.

Weak foot, potential flat foot, is common in children in their early 'teens whose nutrition is below par. By this we do not imply the child has not had enough to eat, but merely that the diet has not included sufficient of certain elements which are essential for good nutrition, normal growth and vitality, particularly calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D.

A good deal of treatment in the way of special shoes, arch supports, strapping feet and legs to support the weak muscles and ligaments and general tonic treatment which the child or youth generally needs, give indifferent results because the young person fails to receive the tonic he or she needs. "What boots it," asks Dr. C. Ulysses Moore, in an illuminating article on Posture (A. J. Dis. Children, 3, 7, '34) "if by certain exercises or by special devices the physician gets the scaphoid bone back in place so as to correct a flatfoot if he does not at the same time increase the calcification of that bone and its abuting fellows so as to enable them to hold their places permanently. I grant that severe physical deformities are orthopedic problems. But are not the mild cases and those in the initial stages of an insidious onset primarily pediatric?"

Long ago I said here: "In severe cases the feet and calves may require strapping with adhesive plaster for temporary support, or there may be a need of general tonic treatment. . . ." A later article on "Foot Strain" I said: "Don't forget that the general muscular tone and state of health has an important bearing. . . ." Again in an article on "Early Flatfoot" several years ago I said: "Three factors contribute to and the occurrence of 'weak feet,' namely, (1) faulty nutrition (2) neglect of physical education, and (3) improper footwear. The nutritional defect is not clearly defined as yet, but we are justified in assuming that the average dietary in the cities is deficient in calcium and phosphorus, important constituents of ligament, muscle and bone. . . ."

You see, we live and learn.

Today it is my opinion, shared as yet by comparatively few physicians, that the fundamental cause of weak feet, pronated feet, weak ankles, potential flatfoot, tired, painful, aching feet, fallen arches in most cases is sufficient vitamin D, sunshine vitamin D, in the intake, thruout the period of childhood up to the age of eighteen years.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercise for Hernia

Since starting the exercise you suggested for hernia I have had no trouble with the hernia protruding. I also wear a truss during the day. Would it be safe to attempt swimming without a truss? (W. V. M.)

Answer—No. The hernia should always be supported with the fingers of one hand while you do the exercises.

Join Our Sommersaultauqua

I don't know whether you are just being facetious when you talk about somersaults for the relief of various complaints. I have found many of your suggestions helpful and our doctor says you are all right. (Mrs. E. F.)

Answer—Well, I roll 'em myself, and I am rather a healthy cuss. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for complimentary copy of the By-Laws of the Somersaltauqua. Roll a few, and if you decide you don't care for them, you can return the unused portion and it won't cost you anything.

Hold Your Breath

I think you said in one article that if a person can hold his breath forty seconds he needn't worry about the state of his heart, or something like that. I can hold my breath fifty seconds—I believe I could hold it a minute if I had to. Is this unusual? I believe my heart is o.k. (D. R. A.)

Answer—Average healthy person can hold his breath 40 to 45 seconds. If the breaking-point comes in less than 40 seconds, circulation is inefficient, whether from heart or other defect.

NOT ON SCHEDULE

Melbourne, Australia —(AP)— Explosive which thieves left in an office safe here after an unsuccessful attempt to open it went off later and killed a welder trying to cut his way into the safe.

The thieves left a note of warning about the unexploded charge in the keyhole and safe experts were sent for. The charge apparently fell into the door as the welder was at work.

Other workmen were severely injured and the half-ton door to the safe was blown in two and tossed 15 feet.

LOTS OF RAIN

Danville, Ill. — (AP) — Hardware merchants here report an unusually large sale of lawn mowers this year and claim that heavy rains throughout the summer have taxed old machines beyond their capacity.

One man who has a large lawn was quoted as saying that the day after finishing cutting he could start again where he started.

LOTS OF LETTERS

Austin, Tex. —(AP)— The postoffice department should be grateful for this year's crop of candidates for Texas public offices.

Postal receipts at the capital were 25 per cent greater this July than last and officials said the chief reason was that several candidates had headquarters in Austin and carried on heavy mail campaigns.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

CASE Record omf a psycholoigist

If you wish to learn the four essentials for outstanding success, read this interesting story of the boy whose snappy comeback won him an education and thus altered his whole life.

CASE J-185: Not long ago I attended a dinner party. Among the guests was Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago Temple.

Many of you readers have probably listened to this witty Scotchman, for his skyscraper church raises its lofty spire in the heart of our Chicago Loop, and doubtless has as great a transient audience as any other church in the world.

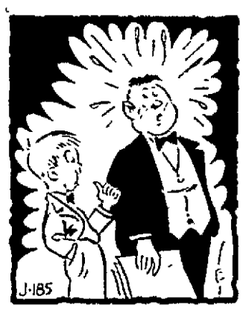

Dr. Thompson was telling me of his boyhood in northern England.

"I left school to work in the mines when I was only ten and a half years of age," he reminisced.

"There were no child labor restrictions in those days, so I worked a 12-hour shift, just like a man. Our day ran from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

DR crane' column Monday sep 21

"At 5 p. m. the horses always quit work, but the men continued for another hour. One afternoon when I was a little past 11 years of age, I blurted out: 'Horses quit at five but asses work till six!'"

Wisdom of Children

"The men around me roared with laughter. They passed my remark along the line. Next day some of the officials came down to find the fellow who was inciting treason.

"When they discovered that I was the guilty party, they told me I was through. Well, I needed my job, so I begged them to give me another chance. Some of the men working beside me also tried to intervene in my behalf.

"Finally the big boss came along. When he heard what the argument was all about, he laughed it off, and said I could stay at work.

"'We need boys who are smart,' he added, and immediately made arrangements for me to enter night school."

Marks of Greatness

Two valuable psychological lessons are evident from this true story. First, you notice that the mediocre officials had no sense of humor, but were petty enforcers of rules.

But the big boss was not a slave to the letter of the law, for he understood the spirit behind it. Big men are usually of this sort. The officious, loud mouthed or vindictive men rarely occupy important executive roles.

Christ was violently criticized for violating the letter of the law, as evidenced in his famous pronouncement: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

A second lesson to be drawn from Dr. Thompson's experience is the fact that wisdom shows itself early. Bright youngsters, whether in English mines, city tenements, or on American farms, will soon stand out from the rank and file.

Founded on Health

But health is also a factor in success. Dr. Thompson worked 12 hours per day and then attended school at night. He has always gotten along on less sleep than the average. Today he still averages only 4 to 5 hours a night.

In this highly competitive age, men need at least four things to become outstandingly successful, which are: intelligence, health, morality and technical training. The first two of these assets are largely a matter of inheritance, though health can be greatly influenced by our environment, as through diet and vaccination.

Morality and education are a product of our environment. Modern young people, therefore, who grumble at their hard lot should remember that great men often work twice as hard as the average to gain their preeminence.

SPARE ROOM APPOINTMENTS

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary that the spare room be provided with powder, perfume and lipstick, as well as brush and comb and mirror, etc?

Answer: It is necessary that the spare room be provided with an unopened cake of soap and plenty of towels. Washcloths and a whisk broom are also very useful since most people forget these. But guests are supposed to bring their own personal items, and most people find it a great nuisance to have the top of their dressing table and the shelves in their bathroom occupied with the furnishings of the house, leaving no place for their own things. On the other hand, it is quite proper and very nice to put a jar of bath salts or perfumed bath tablets in the bathroom, but it is never necessary, nor does the hostess supply a sponge or a nail brush.

The Floors of an Old House

Dear Mrs. Post: We have just bought a very old (Delaware) house. The exact age has not been established, but it must be well over a hundred and fifty years. The floor boards are wide and at the present painted an offending brown color. Are such floors better painted the same throughout the house, or might each room be a different color? I would like opaque paint, I think, better than to see the wood grain through stain. Any advice you could give us about this would certainly be appreciated.

Paint the floor boards in each room to match the coloring of that room. On the old boards you describe you are right to use paint—quite light or bright if you like really colored floors—and after you have painted the floors, wax them, and they will be beautiful.

A Visitor Who Should Not Go Visiting

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it considered good manners for a guest to bring her own sheets to put on the spare room bed? I am having a weekend house party and among my expected guests is one whom I do not know very well. A neighbor, who is a much more intimate friend of this person than I am, has just told me to be prepared to have her bring her own silk bed sheets when she comes, as she always does this when she goes to stay in the house of any one. I've just got to write to you about it, because it has made me suddenly very angry. I wonder if I am wrong, because it seems to me that my own fine linen is above criticism. And I also have fine cotton if she prefers. Surely this is the most than any one should expect, and if she has to bring her own sheets perhaps she is going to bring her own cook too! In fact, I wish I had not invited her!

Answer: Perhaps the person who told you has twisted the story! I did know one person who came to our house when I was a child and who brought her own sheets. She was old and rheumatic and had to sleep between flannel sheets. And few hostesses were (or are) able to furnish flannel. But I can't think of any other circumstances when the behavior described to you would be excusable.

Player Must Be Able to 'Read' Lead

BY ELY CULBERTSON

There are many ingredients in the concoction known as good defense. Two of these are outstandingly important. First, a player must be able to "read" a lead. He must recognize whether the leader may have certain cards or whether the lead in itself is a denial om such a holding. Once this point is settled, the second pre-requisite becomes fairly simple: to select another suit tthat may be more vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's honor tricks and distribution should have been expressed with an opening bid of one no trump rather than one heart, but this is merely an academic criticism inasmuch as the same final contract would have been reached.

West opened the spade jack and declarer, for reasons best known to himself, won with dummy's king. He entered his own hand with a heart to the ace, and returned a diamond toward dummy, finessing the ten spot. East won with the queen and gave careful consideration to his return. The play of the spade king on the first trick had been highly informative, although, of course, declarer had not realized that that could be the case. West's opening lead of the spade jack could have been from only one of two combinations. It was, of course, the top of a sequence, but it might be from a holding of J 10 9 x, or from A J 10 9 x. Which it was could be determined only by consideration of declarer's play. If declarer's spade holding had been the queen without the ace, he would not have dreamed of putting up dummy's king. As an elementary play to gain two spade tricks and stoppers, he would have let the opening lead ride to his own queen. Thus, declarer's play of the king was indisputable proof that he and not West had the ace, and, of course, the queen was marked in declarer's hand by the lead of the jack.

Once East determined that it would be futile to pound away at spades, he was led to the correct defense. He returned his fourth best club and, from that point on the defenders were in the driver's seat. Declarer played low, and West did likewise, merely forcing dummy's club queen with the eight spot. Declarer could not run nine tricks without establishing a diamond, and East, on winning with the diamond ace, returned another club through the king, permitting West to cash three club tricks.

Obviously declarer's carelessness in putting up dummy's spade king on the first lead had made matters much easier for the defenders. If the lead had been allowed to ride to the closed hand, and had been won with the queen, East would have had a difficult decision to make as to what card to return after winning with his diamond queen. Under that circumstance he might have credited the opening leader with five spades to the ace-jack-ten, figuring that South had extra values in clubs to justify his two no trump bid. But even with the play going as it did it took a certain amount of thought on East's part to map out and execute the right defense.

To preserve parsley, dry it in a cool place, then put it into air-tight tins or boxes.

To wash a flannel shirt, soak it in cold water overnight, so it will not shrink. Then wash it in warm water and put in a very little borax. Rinse in cold water and dry in a good wind. When almost dry, iron on the wrong side.

Fathers Often Have no Part in Rearing Children

BY DOROTHY DIX

"No man," said a man to me recently, "ever faces a more heart-breaking and insoluble problem than does the one who sees his children, who have the making of fine men and women in them, being ruined by their mother and realize that he is powerless to save them.

DOROTHY DIX

"Yet that is the situation in which millions of us fathers find ourselves. We know the world too well not to know what is bound to be the ultimate fate of children who have been pampered and spoiled all of their lives and who have known no law except their own wills.

"We have seen too many boys and girls who are drunkards because they have never been taught any self-control; too many young couples getting divorces because they have never been held to any duty or obligation or made to do anything they didn't want to do; too many weaklings who threw up their hands and quit whenever the sledding got hard, not to know what happens to youngsters who have not been disciplined at home and had the courage and the strength bred in them that would enable them to fight the battle of life and win out

"Knowing these things, as every man must know them, the question naturally arises: Why don't we try to prepare our children for life? Why do we apparently consider that we have done our full duty as fathers when we support our youngsters? Why do we wash our hands of all responsibility in their upbringing and turn them over to their mothers to rear when we know that their mothers are incompetent to do it?

"The answer is that not once in a thousand times will a mother concede the children's father any authority over them or co-operate with them in rearing them. Worse than that, almost every mother is a monopolist so far as her children are concerned. She is deadly jealous of their affection for their father and determined that they shall love her best. To gain their favor she makes them feel that SHE is the one who indulges them and saves them from having to do tasks, and that their father is a grinding tyrant who metes out punishment and doesn't care whether they are happy or not.

"My experience is not different from that of the great majority of fathers. If I say 'no' to anything the children want to do, their mother invariably vetoes my decision in the children's presence, and that's poor psychology even in training a dog. If I correct a child, she accuses me of 'picking' on poor little Johnny, and wonders how I can be so hard on a helpless creature. That gives Johnny a grand case of self-pity and puts Father in the light of a brute.

"When I try to teach Bobby some habit of industry and reliability by giving him some small chore to do around the house she negates my efforts by doing it herself or letting him leave it undone, because he wants to play. When I attempt to punish one of the children she flies at me like a tigress and snatches the child to her bosom and 'poor things' it and 'Mamma darlings' it until it ends in my being the culprit instead of the child. She even balks my efforts to give the children an education by always taking the child's part in any difficulty between it and its teacher and making the child believe that the reason he was kept in and got poor marks was because Teacher was an old meanie who for some unknown reason was prejudiced against her little angel.

"I am not exaggerating when I say that I have not only drawn my own portrait, but that of a million of other fathers and our position in reference to our children. It isn't because we don't love our youngsters and don't realize our responsibility to them that we take no part in their rearing. It is because our wives won't let us. If we attempt to interfere in any way or assert any authority, it brings on a fight in which the child sees its mother and father reduced to the level of snarling animals. It hears them bring accusations and counter-accusations against each other that is bound to destroy its respect for both of them.

"Nothing can be worse for children than to be brought up in a home that is a place of perpetual conflict between their parents, so rather than inflict that fate on my youngsters I bought peace for them by stepping out of the picture, except as bill-payer, and am letting their mother work her will with them. Perhaps we fathers who do this make a cowardly surrender, but what else can we do?"

Starting School Can be Made Easy for Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

The first day in school for the beginner is an exciting and difficult experience. The child is taken from home and mother, from everything and everybody he knows, out of the familiar and pleasant ways of home, and thrust into a strange world. He knows nobody. He understands very little of what is going on about him. The sound of the bells brings terror to his heart. The crowd of children about him, who never was with more than a handful of other children in his life, frightens him. He does not hear accurately, nor see correctly, and he is not under the direct control of his own mind. He is a very frightened, puzzled, little child much in need of friendly help and understanding.

The best way to help a child over the first hard day is to allow no first day. When the time for entering school begins to seem nearer, take the child on a visit to school. First walk about the building, the grounds and the halls. Inspect the playgrounds. Explain about them and about the drinking fountains and the toilets. Take several trips for this. Gradually get into the building. Meet a teacher, the one he is to have, if possible. Visit a classroom; go to a school party; give the child a first-hand experience with the school that will take the edge off its newness for him.

If there are brothers and sisters attending school let them take the pupil-to-be to school once in a while. He can stay half a session visiting about. That helps him greatly and does not inconvenience anybody very much. The teachers will understand his presence and help the idea along by being friendly and helpful.

While you are doing this attend to the registration requirements. If he must be vaccinated have it done within the six months before sending him, if possible. Don't wait until school opens and then send him there with a sore spot and a temperature. Remember to have the Schick test given him and so ward off the terrible threat of diphtheria. Anybody who can have this test given his child, and refuses it is dreadfully wrong. Imagine having the chance to avoid this deadly disease and not taking it. Remember to have the new pupil Schicked and vaccinated during the months previous to his school entrance. Take him to the dentist and have his mouth in perfect condition. See that his nose and throat are free of obstructions like adenoids and enlarged tonsils. Healthy tonsils are good things to hold on to, but unhealthy ones are dangerous to a child's health and growth and school progress.

Our health records of school children in the first years of their attendance are not as good as we would like to have them. We will have fewer sick children, fewer cases of infectious and contagious diseases if the children are sent to school in a condition to resist disease. Do attend to all this before sending them to school.

Have his papers where you can put your hand on them. It is remarkable how a child's birth certificate, vaccination certificate and health records lose themselves in the "little box in the right hand corner of the top drawer" and have to be dug out of the bottom of grandmother's trunk the first week of school, with everybody waiting.

Get ready for school now.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTMARSH

THE CHARACTERS

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.

Ottilie Wills, American heiress.

Rene Geiss, a cartoonist with a distorted mind.

Yesterday: Dunning is telling us about "the big swindle." The deaths of prominent men were predicted in an astrological magazine, and insurance collected all over the world when the deaths occurred.

Chapter 19

MARKED FOR MURDER!

The insurance man from Lloyd's, Dunning continued, immediately bought a copy of the Grimoire astrologique for the previous year.

There, set out in smudgy type and with the flowery and fantastic verbiage which the writer affected, were four predictions which made his skin tingle and his heart beat perceptibly quicker, for they forecast with a remarkable precision of detail, the sudden deaths of four eminent gentlemen who had met their ends in the previous year.

The Grimoire had been published in January. The deaths had occurred in the following March, May, August and November. Mr. Pockett was a level-headed man. He still refused to believe in the predictive powers of astrology, but instead a very curious and sinister idea occurred to him—namely, that these deaths and the resultant highly profitable insurance claims, had been engineered by some person or persons, and that one of them, with a distorted sense of humor, was amusing himself by announcing them in advance through the medium of the Grimoire.

His holiday was nearly at an end. He found time to visit Nice and inspect the small printing establishment where the Grimoire saw the light each first of January, but the proprietor, while admitting the publication and marketing of the precious production, absolutely and completely refused to disclose the name of the client who was responsible for it. There was nothing more to be done. If he told his suspicions to the local police, they would laugh at him; if he asked for help in tracing the mysterious astrologer, they would show him the door. He went home.

Back to London he postulated his theory to a colleague from the Bureau Veritas, and found to his amazement, that he was being taken seriously. The guest's Gallic imagination was fired; he asked a variety of pertinent questions, suggested a detail or two to round off the picture, and returned to Paris promising further discussion at an early date.

Here Mr. Dunning paused to look regretfully at his empty glass, and Hugo promptly refilled it.

The next chapter of the story opened, he said with the visit to Paris of a representative of the American Bureau, to whom Mr. Pockett's friend mentioned the theory which had gripped his imagination as firmly as it had the Englishman's. The visitor, whose pocket had been severely depleted by the demise of the South American president, listened, was impressed and with the energy of his race, insisted on immediate action. After that, said Mr. Dunning, things began to hum.

Meetings were held of representatives of the three great clearing-houses, as a result of which it was decided that investigation was justified, and it was agreed to employ some reliable firm to carry out inquiries. In the end—and here Mr. Dunning swelled with justifiable pride—his organization was chosen, and the first thing that he was able to bring to light was the fact that behind the myriad insurances on the two most recent deaths loomed large the figures of three men; they were, in short, the source of the capital which had furnished the original premiums—Strahl, Venner and Rakovsky.

One Controlling Brain

The existence of the Big Swindle was now established, and Dunning's agency was empowered to go ful speed ahead, with all the financial backing that was required; but for the moment the scent seemed to have petered out.

Only, one fact began to emerge. Behind all these individuals and the groups that directed them, there must be one controlling personality, one brain that plotted and schemed, that evolved the plans not only of the money-making side of the business, but for the organized crime that made such profit-making possible.

It must be, he surmised, a man of brilliant intellect, with international social connections that kept him informed, in advance of the movements of prominent personages in a number of countries, and of the political and financial conditions in these same countries; but it must furthermore be a man who owed neither physical nor spiritual allegiance to any established order, a man of warped morals and twisted mentality, and one, moreover, whose vanity was such that he judged all means justified to achieve the end of his personal enrichment. So much he could envisage without difficulty, but when it came to picking the individual, he was completely stuck.

"Geiss!" said Hugo and I with one accord.

Dunning nodded slowly. "In the light of the events of the past two days," he admitted, "possibly so."

"But surely," I suggested, "the quickest way to locate the person would have been through the fellow who printed the Grimoire?"

He beamed at me. "Son," he drawled, "the investigation was placed in my hands one year ago, and it took me just three months to reach that conclusion: but, mind you, I'd had a lot of ground to cover before I got there! I sailed for France in November. I got to Nice and paid an informal call on the printer's, only to discover that he had expired three months earlier from heart-failure. Heart-failure is a convenient complaint. The fact that the gentleman had expired at the very moment that the investigation had been decided on might give one something to think about, but didn't help any in tracing the author of the Grimoire. All that remained for me was to wait until the first of January and see if it appeared as usual."

"But the police," said Hugo impatiently—"surely by that time you had called in the Surete?"

Dr. Dunning favored us with a wink. "There are occasions when a man's actions are considerably freer if he remains outside the law, and particularly the French law. The gentleman known as Vladimri Rakovsky, who was one of the three behind the previous year's insurances, has friends in high places in

Old Gardener Says:

This is a good time to set out evergreen hedges and it is perfectly feasible to buy large plants in order to have immediate effects. But such a plan is rather expensive and as a matter of fact is not to be recommended because young plants will eventually grow to make a smoother more symmetrical hedge than tall plants will, probably because the roots can adjust themselves more readily to their new and closely confined situation. Plants two or two and a half feet high are about the right size. The condition of one's purse may argue for still smaller plants, and there is no reason why very small ones should not be used.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

When you understand that a "blackhead" is nothing more than natural skin oil clogged in a tiny pore and blackened with dust, there is no need to be alarmed if your skin is so blemished.

The pore has closed in the first place because it became inactive through lack of blood circulation. It is safe to bet that a young girl troubled with blackheads, either takes insufficient bodily exercise, or does not take enough time to properly cleanse her skin!

Either fault is unpardonable in this enlightened age, so the girl is a victim to her own carelessness. I once knew of a blighted romance because the young man in the case couldn't quite condone the young lady's blemished skin. "Every time I looked into her face and saw those blemishes on her nose and chin, I wondered why she didn't remove them! I figured if she was the girl I wanted her to be she would want to keep her face clean!" And so he drifted away!

Any treatment tending to overcome oily skin will tend to remove blackheads and tiny pimples. Cleanliness is of great importance! Especially in preventing the infection and mild inflammation which frequently causes a spreading of pimples on the skin.

Squeezing and pinching blackheads is not advisable. If you have many, a steaming of the face or washing with hot water and soap to open the pores is permitted. But no hot water or steam on an oily skin thereafter!

If the blemishes are stubborn bathe your skin with a solution of common washing soda, (one teaspoonful to a pint of water), to soften them for removal. But as this is very irritating to the skin it should be wiped off in a couple of minutes and cold milk applied to soothe your face.

Don't be a goose! Everyone squeezed means a new crop!

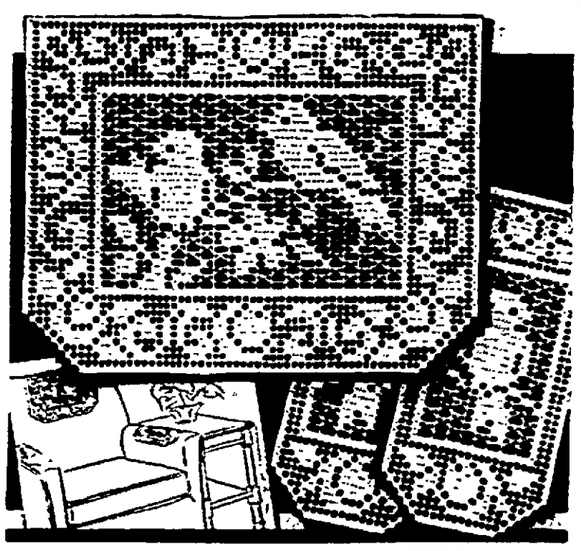

A complexion brush and superfatted soap are excellent aids in ridding the skin of these blemishes. But if they resist even this brisk treatment, then you may resort to the old-fashioned method of pressing them with a remover which you may buy in any druestore. Squeezing a blackhead with two fingers only bruises the tissue and leads to the formation of a pimple.

Once your skin is clear, daily washing with soap and warm water, followed by dousings of chilled water or harmless astringent such as lemon juice, borax or benzoin solution, will keep your skin clear.

Of course external and internal stimulation are necessary. See that you exercise more and never, never, go to bed with a dirty face

Fair Weather Is Outlook; Waupaca County Drying Out

Wolf, Pigeon Rivers Far Above Normal; Roads, Bridge Damaged

For the first time in about a week, the weatherman today became optimistic and predicted "generally fair tonight and Tuesday" for Appleton and vicinity.

There was rain in the city last night and this morning—measuring .66 of an inch—but the sun appeared occasionally today, and up to 2 o'clock this afternoon no more rain had fallen.

Waupaca county was drying out today from the most sustained rains in the memory of old-timers. The Wolf river rose five feet since last Tuesday under a rainfall that measured 7.55 inches in the last six days.

The Pigeon river at Clintonville was swollen and it was reported that the Rivera Grill restaurant had several inches of water on the floor yesterday. A 16-foot bridge over Stillman Creek on County Trunk X between Weyauwega and Northport was washed away. Waupaca county roads were extensively damaged, with several bad washouts blocking traffic.

The Fox river was rushing swiftly today, heavy from the week's rains, but there was no danger of flood. Roads in Outagamie county are wet but passable.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 78 and the lowest 63, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. At 2 o'clock this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 74 degrees.

Phoenix, Ariz., with 100, and Modena, Wis., with 42, reported the high and low temperatures in the nation Sunday.

Group to Direct Cabbage Surplus Buying Appointed

Mass Meeting Will be Held At Shiocton High School Tonight

A temporary committee of five cabbage growers to act as the supervisory body in the cabbage buying program in Outagamie county was appointed at a meeting of growers, county officials, and Ralph Headley, state representative of the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, Saturday afternoon at the courthouse.

Members of the committee are Phil Bixby, Appleton; Joe Griesbach, town of Grand Chute; Orvil Johnson, Herman Knorr, Shiocton; and Henry Flannagan, Bear Creek.

R. C. Swanson, county agent said this morning that since the commodities corporation does not buy from farmers themselves but from farmers' organizations, the Appleton Cooperative Cabbage Growers' association will deal with the federal agency.

The committee appointed Saturday will have the task of setting the cabbage acreage for each farmer. The acreage determines how much will be bought from each grower.

The mass meeting of county cabbage growers will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the Shiocton High school gymnasium.

Pioneer Kaukauna Resident Is Dead

John Corcoran, 83, Veteran Grocer and City Official, Dies

Kaukauna — John H. Corcoran, 83, 308 E. Eighth street, former city official and resident of Kaukauna the last 58 years, died at 6:30 Sunday evening at his home after a 2-year illness.

Mr. Corcoran was born July 26, 1855, at Quarreyville, New York, and came to Fond du Lac with his parents when a child. He moved to Kaukauna in 1880 with his father and brothers and was employed on the water power canal project. Mr Corcoran established a grocery store on the present site of the Bank of Kaukauna and later went into the wholesale and retail liquor business. He reentered the grocery business in 1923.

He served as alderman, assessor and poor commissioner at Kaukauna and was a member of St. Mary's church and the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin.

Mr. Corcoran married Miss Sarah Gagahan of Sheboygan in 1878 who died in 1894. Later he married Miss May Haphner of Chilton.

Surviving are the widow; three sons, Frank J. Tacomah, Wash.; William J. Ironwood; John M., Kaukauna; two daughters, Mrs. Leon Wolf, Appleton; Miss Roberta M. Corcoran, New York; one brother, Matthew, Fond du Lac; two sisters, Mrs. William R. Kennedy, Milwaukee; Mrs. Mary L. Keenan, Fond du Lac, and 13 grandchildren.

Maryland Contest Tests New Deal or failure of President Roosevelt's efforts to defeat congressmen opposed to his program.

Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, one of those on the president's blacklist, was up for Democratic renomination against Representative David J. Lewis, whom Mr. Roosevelt lauded as a social security pioneer. Georgia will settle a similar contest Wednesday.

There was no senate seat at stake in Maine, one of the two states lost by the Rooseveit-Garner ticket in 1936, but Democrats were trying to defeat a Republican governor and three Republican house members.

Governor Lewis O. Barrows, Republican, was opposed by Louis Brann, his Democratic predecessor who lost a senatorial race two years ago. Brann has not been known as an especially ardent New Dealer.

Mr. Roosevelt did not take part in the Maine campaign, but he went into Maryland a week ago to speak in behalf of Lewis.

The 69-year-old representative, who rose from coal miner to lawyer and legislator, contends Tydings has voted more as a Republican than as a Democrat. The senator, who at 48 is seeking a third term, has argued that his opponent would be merely a rubber stamp.

Senatorial Primaries

The Democratic victor will oppose either Oscar Leser, former Baltimore judge, or Galen Talt, for 22 years Republican state chairman. Harry Nice, one of the nation's few Republican governors, sought renomination against Harry T. Phoenbus, while the Democrats had a four-way gubernatorial contest.

There will be senatorial primaries tomorrow in Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Vermont, Utah and Washington, but in most of these states the incumbents have little or no intra-party opposition.

Louisiana also will have a primary, but Democrats there already have declared Senator H. Overton renominated. Michigan, which has no senatorship at stake this year, will decide other contests in a primary.

Although the New Deal is not an issue in the Democratic senatorial primaries Tuesday, it is the center of Georgia's four-man senatorial battle. The primary in that state Wednesday will be between Senator Walter George, whom the president wants defeated; Lawrence Camp, White House choice; former Governor Eugene Talmadge and William G. McRae.

Senator Lonergan of Connecticut, who like George and Tydings opposed the 1937 court bill, will come up for renomination in a state Democratic convention Tuesday and Wednesday. He has been endorsed by Attorney General Cummings.

cian, and Dr. G. B. Eusterman of the Mayo clinic.

Secretary Early reported that Mr. Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and James' wife, Betsy, "were greatly relieved" when they found James' ulcer was a benign rather than a malignant one.

Malignant ulcers are those which involve cancer. Benign ulcers do not.

After the ulcer had been removed, a second operation, which Dr. Gray described as "a short-circuiting type," was performed. It consisted of joining the intestine to the back wall of the stomach—in medical parlance a posterior gastroenterostomy.

Dr. Gray talked with the president just after the chief executive's special train arrived here. He advised an immediate operation, and Mr. Roosevelt consented. Previously, the operation had been scheduled for this morning.

Early said the president would remain here at least through today and probably through tomorrow. Mr. Roosevelt will go back to the summer White House at Hyde Park when he leaves here.

Two 'Miss Americas' Offer Problem To Atlantic City Beauty Pageant

New York—(AP)—The Atlantic City beauty pageant that produced a vanishing Miss America last year today had a problem of plural pulchritude, or two "Miss Americas."

Scornfully criticizing the judges who Saturday gave the nod to Marilyn Meseke, a 20-year-old blonde from Marion, Ohio, Earl Carroll, who has had quite a bit to do with selecting beautiful ladies, last night placed a "golden" crown on the brow of Claire James of Los Angeles and pronounced her "the true Miss America."

Miss James, statuesque brunette of 19 years, placed second at the Atlantic City pageant of pulchitrude. She said she was surprised at the rating because "at least eight of the 15 judges later told me they voted for me and couldn't understand it."

"Judges Incompetent"

In his speech of presentation—made in a crowded hotel room—theatrical Producer Carroll said:

"The judges at Atlantic City were incompetent. I've chosen enough beautiful girls to know what it's all about. Anyone at the contest could tell by the applause that Miss California was the winner.

"So, Miss James, I crown you fairest of the fair and as the most beautiful girl in the Atlantic City pageant."

Carroll said he had nothing to do with any professional career Miss James might follow. The hazel-eyed "Miss California," born in Minneapolis, said she had signed no contracts but had received several "attractive offers."

She denied reports from Atlantic City that she complained of "insults" at the pageant.

Thousands Await Sales-Job Rally Wednesday Night

same hour Wednesday, don't think the city is on fire. It will be another rally reminder.

It is expected that 10,000 people will be out to the park Wednesday evening. Both Lawrence college and Appleton High school bleachers have been set up in the park to augment the park benches. Parking accommodations have been enlarged and a special police detachment will be on duty to coordinate traffic.

It has been suggested that persons who find parking space fairly near the stage remain in their cars, for all the available bleachers in Appleton won't seat the crowd that will swarm to the park Wednesday evening.

A high-powered public address system will relay the talks by Walker and others, the brilliant acts and stirring music to every corner of the park.

The committee has asked that children accompany parents to the rally and take seats with them. Careful study has been made so that the crowds will be handled rapidly and in an orderly manner and the program will be presented clearly and without delays.

PANNECK CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC

Man's first duty is to keep himself well, his next is to help others do so. In 1895 D. D. Palmer, a magnetic healer of Davenport, Iowa, discovered Chiropractic. The Palmer School of Chiropractic is the mother school. It is the fountain head. Dr. B. J. Palmer is the only son of D. D. Palmer, the head of the school. He is the last and final word in all the courts in the United States, as to what Chiropractic is and what it is not. I have been trained under the master of Chiropractic. I give you that which he taught me, the latest and the highest development in Chiropractic.

There is a great joy and happiness in life to see cases come here, hopeless and helpless, paralyzed, sick, given up to die, and then under our care daily to have them report new changes of restored health. These people are getting well and best of all they realize it and know it. Cases come here who are like dying rosebushes; they are withering away, dying by inches; we adjust them and we see advances of new life coming forth; we see smiles and joy of living reappear into these withered dried up bodies and finally they enjoy life. Chiropractic the Twentieth Century Health Science is the new way of getting well and staying well. We in this clinic proceed accurately with our own definite lines, locating the cause of disease with the aid of scientific instruments and stereoscopical spinographs. Chiropractic as applied here comes to the aid of problem cases. Investigate my clinic. For your health appointment phone 4319-W.

Man is as old as his spine. When the spine has impinged nerves and impaired body foundations, the victim becomes old long before his time. When all mankind knows about and takes Chiropractic the span of human life will be materially lengthened. Reports of patients right here in your own community is rather good proof. A large number of people, many of whom you know, who came to our clinic and have been restored to health should be very good evidence that you have a chance in regaining your health under my personal supervision. Kruse Plaintiff In Civil Action Against Dennees

Names Father, Two Sons Defendants in Suit for $1,000 Damages

Neenah — Seeking damages amounting to $1,000 for injuries he claims to have received in a fight July 26 at the Lakeview school south of Neenah, Louis Kruse, town of Neenah, filed a summons and complaint against Sam Dennee and two sons, William and Peter Dennee, in municipal court, Oshkosh, Saturday.

Kruse, a member of the school board, also was a complainant against Dennee and 3 sons, the third one being Francis, charging assault and battery. The four defendants pleaded nolo contendere to the charges and were fined, the fines aggregating more than $100.

During the assault and battery action, authorities said that Kruse and another member of the sncool board were sitting on the school lawn waiting for a board meeting when, it was alleged, the Dennees' approached and assaulted them.

The tussle, it was said, grew out of a condemnation action started by the school district to acquire a strip of land adjoining the school property which belonged to Sam Dennee. The owner disagreed with the amount of the damages awarded and appealed the case. The appeal still is pending. Meanwhile, school officials began removing a fence and otherwise preparing the Dennee land for school purposes. It is alleged that Dennee claimed at the time that the board had no right to trespass pending settlement of the claim for damage.

Following the assault and battery suit, however, Frank Keefe, Dennee's attorney, announced that this phase of the quarrel had been settled and that it was agreeable to Dennee that the board begin work on the land.

68 Fixtures Will be Installed in $1,800 Electrical Job

Neenah—Three times as much illumination will be available for patrons and the staff at the Neenah Public library when the $1,800 electrical job is completed, according to Walter Werner of the Keil-Werner Electric company.

Work on the electrical project has been started, but while the new system is being installed, illumination at the library will be available at all times.

According to a test made, the present system of lighting gives a maximum of 5-foot candles at a height of 36 feet, while the minimum for the new system will be 15-foot candles. Sixty-eight fixtures each requiring about 45 feet of wire laid in conduits will be installed. The lighting will be indirect.

A new 225-ampere service is being installed and a new type cabinet automatic circuit breaker, used instead of fuses, will be included. A fan to circulate the air to distribute heat, and 22 receptacles are being placed.

Menasha Team to Pin Hopes on Left-Handed Pitching Ace

Menasha— The Polish Falcons champions of the Fox River Valley league will meet their severest test in the amateur baseball tournament at Borchert field, Milwaukee, at 8 o'clock tonight when they oppose the Wausau Athletics. The Falcons will pin their hopes on George Kosloski, left-handed pitching ace.

Both teams have similar records in the state tournament as each has scored two victories by the shutout route. Melvin Strong is the ace of the Wausau team and pitched a no-hit shutout against Biron. The Wausau team defeated Viroqua 4 to 0 in the first round of the tournament and defeated Biron by the same score.

The Falcons opened the tournament with a 3 to 0 victory over Stockbridge of the Eastern Wisconsin league in which Kosloski limited the Indians to one scratch infield hit. Kosloski hurled the first four innings against Sunset in the second round game and allowed one hit. Not a ball has been hit to the outfield while the Falcon left-hander was on the mound. The Falcons defeated Sunset 8 to 0.

Strong Hurls No-Hitter

In turning in his no-hitter against Biron, Strong struck out nine and walked two. Schultz pitched the first game for Wausau in the state tournament and struck out six while allowing four hits.

Kosloski has struck out 22 in 11 innings of tournament play and has allowed only two hits. No player has gotten farther than second base against the Falcon star.

The Falcons have fielded spectacularly in support of their pitcher and have only one error charged against them in the two games. They have been hitting well and have pounded the ball at a .313 clip in the tournament, more than 50 points higher than their average during the regular season.

Against Stockbridge the Falcons got six hits in 24 attempts while against Sunset they collected 10 in 27 attempts. E. Paulowski, stocky second baseman, is the leading hitter in the tournament with three hits in five attempts.

Council to Meet With Pelton on Property Price

Aldermen to Seek Agreement on Purchase of Land Near School

Neenah — The city council will meet informally with LaVerne Pelton in order to reach an agreement on the price of the latter's property adjacent to the Kimberly school building at 7:30 tonight at the city hall.

Pelton quoted a price of $6,800 for the property with the provision he can keep the garage, but at last Wednesday night's meeting, the council rejected the offer. The council felt that the price was out of line in view of the fact that the assessed value on the property was $4,800. The building on the property, a brick dwelling, will not be of use.

The board of education recently requested the council to purchase additional land near the school to provide for a playground and also to be used for building an addition to the school in the future.

At the meeting, Alderman Emil Harder, chairman of the finance committee, reported that he had contacted owners of property near the school and although the owner of the Bylow property indicated he wasn't anxious to sell, he would consider an offer of $6,500. The owner of the Sorenson property didn't want to sell, but when he did, he would give the city first chance, Harder said.

A toy bank with some small change in it was taken. Entry apparently was gained by use of a key for a door to the home was found open when the family returned.

Ammon Facing Difficult Job as Dairy Prices Fall

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The LaFollette administration has filled many places with new faces in the statehouse in recent months. Some of the places are lucrative, and were eagerly sought. Opponents of the administration will claim that all of them are lucrative.

Ammon

However, at least one of the new job-holders is finding his job difficult. He is Ralph E. Ammon, recently named full-fledged chief of the powerful department of agriculture and markets, toward which Wisconsin farmers have been trained to look for protection of their economic interests and guidance in the practical problems of modern husbandry.

No other state office figures so prominently in political speeches as the department of agriculture and markets. Criticism of it and its personnel has been in the platform of parties out of office and trying to get in for years. And each year it has grown bigger, more powerful as successive legislatures dumped new jobs into its lap, jobs conceived by farmer legislators and state administrations redeeming their campaign pledges to "do something for the Wisconsin farmer".

Prices Fall

Into the directorship of this unit early this year was plumped young, nedipendent Ralph E. Ammon, as the result of Governor LaFollette's reorganization project. Ammon succeeded Charles L. Hill, and Fred Schultheiss, full-time commissioners, who had been under fire from politicians and farmers almost since the beginning of their terms.

Almost as soon as his services began, he learned that there is a big difference between running a state department to which farmers look with expectation of a great many things, and managing the state fair, which Ammon had been doing for several years before. Milk dropped in price; the bottom appeared to be slowly falling out of the cheese market. Farmers sent complaints, cheesemakers bellowed in alarm when cheese prices fell to the lowest point in recent years, while politicians gave no sign of giving up their traditional habit of making the department the goat for their pronouncements.

Ammon promptly got into a scrap with wily, outspoken Charles E. Broughton, master of the Democratic party in Wisconsin. In response to Ammon's efforts to improve the operations of the Plymouth Cheese exchange, Broughton charged publicly that the department of agriculture is in league with the cheese monopolists to squeeze out "the corner cheese factory". But here came a surprise. Critics of the department had grown accustomed to getting conciliatory replies from department heads. Ammon resorted to fighting back, returning blow for blow. Presumably that fight is still on, although both sides have subsided.

This week Ammon got another ticklish demand, that retail milk prices be ordered down in order to speed up consumption. It came from cheese makers who are flooded with surplus milk. Anyone who knows the milk market situation knows that Ammon faces a difficult task, if he decides to try to placate the cheesemen. For dealers, labor in local dairies, and the producing farmers who are selling to the city markets will almost certainly oppose any sacrifice in price as a concession to the cheese factories.

Small Pheasant Refuges Are Planned for County

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Reestablishment of a large deer refuge in Oconto county and a new policy of creating small pheasant refuges in northeastern Wisconsin, including Outagamie, Brown, Shawano, Oconto, and Waupaca counties, were revealed today by the state conservation department.

The Cathedral Woods refuge, designed mainly for the protection of deer during the shooting season, and including 3,460 acres in Oconto county, has been established by order of the conservation commission, it was announced today. The refuge replaces the Archibald lake game refuge established in 1935, and also includes several water and land additions made for the purpose of creating more uniform boundaries.

The refuge consists of land principally owned by the Holt Lumber company, and derives its name from a tract of virgin timber within its limits, known as the Cathedral Woods. It is particularly valuable for deer, according to Walter Scott of the conservation department, but since it now also includes Archibald Lake, it serves as a protection for waterfowl and species of fur-bearing animals.

Plan Small Refuges

In order to preserve a stock of breeding birds in the heavily hunted northeastern counties, the department is now at work on plans for a series of small refuges for pheasants, particularly in Outagamie county, where under the leadership of A. J. Meyer of Appleton, farmers and sportsmen have shown enthusiastic support for the plan, according to Scott.

While the previous minimum acreage for a bird refuge was 160 acres, the new ones planned will be as small as 20 ot 40 acres, so that more of them may be created without taking large amounts of territory out of hunting.

Good results from such a policy have been obtained in the southeastern Wisconsin area, Scott reports. Expansion of the small refuges will mean better hunting as the result of the protection of good breeding stock during the hunting season. Both cocks and hens will be protected in those areas.

Local wardens are now at work on the new refuge plans, Scott said.

It's Easy to Talk but War Is Bloody Business

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It is easy to sound off about Great Britain's sacred obligation to go to war again, if necessary, to save Czechoslovakia from the foul invader. A case can be made out for that.

But war happens to be a deeply personal matter to every individual who must do the actual fighting, and those individuals, in the main, are boys and young men, much like Americans of the same age. Those who would be called on to do the fighting include Canadian boys and young men who are no more intimately acquainted or personally concerned with a border fight in the middle part of Europe than Americans.

Pegler

The Canadian border, that unarmed imaginary line which is the only international boundary of which they have any first-hand knowledge, is not stout enough to quarantine the duty to fight and be lacerated or killed. If a Canadian or an English boy has a personal duty to fight for democracy in Czechoslovakia, a land he never saw, it is only a fine technicality which relieves an American of the same duty.

Certainly, Americans admit no such obligations, but, nevertheless, there are Americans who hold Great Britain up to scorn because human beings in high office hesitate to commit individual men and boys to this war.

Granted that Germany, if Hitler gets away with it in Czechoslovakia, will push on, demanding, seizing more and more in a drive to the east, and that he would eventually embarrass or endanger the British empire, the fact still remains that when the decision is made hundreds of thousands of individual human beings, most of them young men, will have to give up their studies, their work, their homes and the decencies of life to go to a foreign land and fight. The generals, and we in the United States, will think of the war in terms of battles and armies, but it will be a war of boys and men, nevertheless.

To Americans It Is Not A Pressing Matter

The individual of the German side is less distinct in the picture. It is not easy to think of him as a decent, tolerant, individual youth, because today, as before, he represents arrogant, horrible cruelty. He marches in vast parades before Hitler, goose-stepping as he passes the reviewing stand, and he appears only collectively as a menace to the peace of the world and the security of pleasant individuals who wish he wouldn't bring on this new bloodletting.

To a schoolboy or young man in England, Wales or Scotland, Czechoslovakia is no more intimate than the same land, its language, its cities, its people and local problems are to Americans of the same age. It is a foreign country to them, and the rights and wrongs of the dispute are no more pressing as a personal matter than they are to Americans.

To Americans it is not a pressing, personal matter, calling for individual action and the disruption of the whole life of their country, and very likely the destruction of the American form of government in a post-war political upheaval.

There's No Reason To Believe War Would Be Last

If one more war could reasonably be expected to settle matters for all time, the prospects of the sacrifice would be less dreadful to the individual who would have to do the fighting. But there is no reason to think that one more war would be anything but a curtain-raiser for still another. They have been fighting one another in big and little gangs of nations, with only breathtaking spells between, for hundreds of years.

One time the sacred cause finds Prussia killing Bavarians and Austrians. Another time they are blood brothers united against their late brother-in-arms under the banners of Franz Josef. The Balkan people have fertilized their fields with the blood and bones of their enemies across the hill or river one year and fought shoulder to shoulder with them as comrades the next.

Like the gangs of Chicago, they change allegiance, double-cross one another, conspire and break out in wars endlessly, and the victor hardly has time to sit down to wash the blood off his guns with a tall beer before he finds himself ganged by a new coalition, including certain of his late pals.

The British have done their share of all this. God knows, but wasn't this be a new day in the world?

Crosses Lake in Motor Boat 'Just for Ride'

Milwaukee—(AP)—Julius Sabo, 21, returned to Muskegon, Mich., on a carferry last night after crossing squally Lake Michigan in an outboard motorboat, "just for the ride."

Sabo made the crossing without a compass. Late Saturday night he mistook the lights of a freighter off Kenosha for a pier. The freighter gave him a tow to Milwaukee.

After the 85-mile trip, his boat, named "Spike," sank in the wash of a passing steamer just as it reached the dock. Police fished "Spike" out.

The outboard's seams were opened by the rollers, so Sabo decided not to tempt fate with a return trip.

FAMED PRIEST DIES

Milwaukee—(AP)—Funeral services will be held Wednesday for the Rev. Dr. A. E. Breen, 75, professor of Hebrew and scripture at St. Francis (Wis.) seminary for nearly a decade, who died Saturday following an operation.

His best known work, of which three complete editions were sold, was the "Harmonized Exposition of the Four Gospels."

Arm Is Torn Off by Auto As Man Walks Along Road

Milwaukee—(AP)—Oscar Kavila, 56, of Brantwood, Wis., was injured seriously last night when a passing automobile tore his arm off as he walked along Highway 55 near here. A corner of his coat caught on the automobile, the sudden jerk snapped the arm off. Kavila remained standing after the accident. Deputies cruising in a nearby squad car applied tourniquets to stop the flow of blood and brought him to county general hospital, where his condition was described as fair.

William Powell started his dramatic career by writing a 23-page letter to his aunt for a loan to cover two terms in a dramatic school and living expenses. At the end of his dramatic training, he was given a role in a production at $40 a week. Incidentally, it took him 13 years to repay his aunt. Today he is well-known for his suave, light roles.

Hollywood — Idol Chatter: Jean Arthur's cheery smiles seem to be reserved for screen use only — off-screen she usually wears a frown. You never see Mr. Temple on Shirley's set—that's Mrs. Temple's province and she rules it. That new Benny mansion is not only the first house-that-Jack built, but the only one he's ever owned. Real names: Frances Farmer and Leif Erickson sign hotel registers as Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson.

Dorothy Lamour has never been noted for clothes sense, but she's the best-undressed star in town. Most be-gadgeted jallope in Hollywood belongs to Jackie Cooper—it even has an automatic device which washes the windshield. Today's discovery: the theatre in Beverly Hills that has been specializing in horror pictures is owned by Bobbie Breen. Odd that Kay Francis, whose contract with Warner Brothers expressly forbids her to fly, should be chosen to star in an aviation thriller.

Virginia Bruce is wearing bells on her fingers—ten of them on a tiny ring. You'd never suspect it from his screen roles, but Wallace Beery owns one of Filmville's most elaborate wardrobes. I never see the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco without reflecting what a clever dental engineer could accomplish with Martha Raye.

On fogless nights, I like to drive high into the hills, to a place called Lookout Point. The road zig-zags up through a series of pitch-dark canyons and then, with dramatic suddenness, emerges on the outer face of the mountain, a thousand feet above the twinkling, multi-colored lights of Hollywood. Seen from there, Filmtown has a breath-taking, dream-like beauty. It wears the flashing jewels that a city of make-believe should wear. Sitting there last night, it occurred to me that those lights symbolize perfectly the lives of the people who live under them. The blazing arcs are the great celebrities; the lesser lights are the bit players, the extra mob and the obscure technicians supplied a perfect period to the parallel. Just as I turned to leave, one of the brightest lights flickered fitfully for a moment—then went out. Maybe I'm becoming a cynic.

At Lakeside Golf Club the other A. M., we were talking about Gary Cooper and how monosyllabic he is. It was Bing Crosby who chimed in with the prize comment. "Yeah," he said, "that Cooper is as frugal with words that when he meets Jimmy Stewart and Jimmy Cagney together, he just says, 'H'yah, Jimmies!'"

Was talking to Binnie Barnes today about paintings—or rather, Binnie was talking to me. She owns a fine collection and knows more about art than most professional critics. While we chatted a friend of mine joined us, was introduced to Binnie, and lingered long enough to hear the conclusion of her lecture. Frankly amused at first — for he also collects paintings, he was too amazed by the time she finished to be very diplomatic. "Miss Barnes," he said, "you're the last person I should have expected to have such tastes." I don't think Binnie was pleased, as she retorted, "Even we zannies have to turn serious once in awhile. Honestly—in some of those parts I play, I'm not being myself—I'm acting!"

Theatre audiences seem to like their pictures in series—witness the amazing success of "Torchy Blane," Mr. Moto," "Charlie Chan" and the Jones and Hardy families. The studios, being able to turn such fare out for about one-fourth of the amount spent on most "Class A" productions, are also pleased — but the actors concerned call such assignments headaches. Lewis Stone is fed up with being Judge Hardy; Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane have had enough of Torchy Blane and I have no doubt his dissatisfaction with the life of Charlie Chan contributed to the nervous breakdown that wrote finis to Warner Oland's career. The average person probably would have difficult understanding why an actor, earning several thousand a week, would be dissatisfied with any role—but the average person doesn't know movie actors. I believe, after rubbing elbows with them for years, that nine-tenths of the stars in Hollywood chose acting as a profession because they couldn't stand the monotony of prosaic business. Naturally, series pictures are poison to them.

The other night at a studio preview of a super-colossal, someone shouted "Author" — and everyone in the first two rows stood up.

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's poultice-and-vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

Stories of Switzerland

1—WILLIAM TELL

William Tell is a national hero of Switzerland. It may be that the legends about him are not true, but they have been told for hundreds of years.

It is said that William Tell lived more than 600 years ago, when Austria was trying to make her power firm over the Swiss. Officers of the law, often called "bailiffs" were sent to Switzerland to collect taxes and to govern the people in other ways.

One of the bailiffs was named Gessler, and he was a cruel man. On a November day in 1307 the people in the down of Altdorf were told they must "salute the ducal hat."

William Tell would not salute the hat, so he was brought before Gessler to be punished. Gessler learned that Tell was supposed to be skillful with his crossbow, so he said:

"You must shoot an arrow at an apple on your son's head, and knock the apple off."

Tell agreed, and fired the shot, striking the apple, not his son. A shout of joy arose from the people who watched the event.

Despite his success, Tell was placed on a small boat to be taken to a prison across the lake. On the way a storm arose, and Tell was allowed to handle the tiller because he knew the lake so well. He steered the boat ashore, to a place where he could leap to a rocky ledge, while the rest on board needed time to make the landing.

The hunt for Tell was taken up as quickly as could be, but the men searching went in different directions, Gessler himself caught up to Tell, but the hero shot him with his crossbow.

That is the way the legend is told sometimes, but there have been changes in it since it was first sung in a ballad. We are told that soon afterwards the Swiss arose in revolt to drive the Austrians from their land.

It may be that the William Tell legend has little more truth in it than the story of George Washington and the Cherry Tree. At any rate, it points back to times when the Swiss really did struggle to keep their country free from foreign rule.

Switzerland today is a free country, a place where the people seem happy to be alive. Citizens of German, French and Italian descent live together, and are friends. It may be that all the nations of Europe could unite in much the same way, and learn to live together peacefully and happily.

Wolf River Rises Nearly Five Feet As Rains Continue

Waupaca County Streams At High Water Levels; Roads are Damaged

New London — The effect of unceasing rains of the last week began to appear in Waupaca county during the weekend when rivers and creeks rose to high-water levels and county highways suffered the greatest damage from water in years.

Precipitation of another half inch of rain on Sunday added to a total of 7.55 inches of water from the skies in the last six days. The Wolf river reached the 7-foot mark here last night after rising steadily for nearly five feet since Tuesday. The water assumed spring thaw proportions and reached near the top of the lower retaining walls through the city.

At Clintonville the Pigeon river swelled its banks to near the flood mark and it was reported the sunken Rivera Grill restaurant had several inches of water on the floor yesterday.

Warns of Washouts

Waupaca county trunk roads suffered badly according to Charles W. Larson, county highway commissioner. While few roads were closed to traffic the commissioner warned motorists to be careful of washouts and extremely soft shoulders.

A 16-foot bridge was washed away over Stillman Creek on County Trunk X half way between Weyauwega and Northport. The gap will require about 1,000 yards of filling. The road has been detoured.

County Trunk G between Marion and Big Falls was closed during the weekend with three feet of water over the road in some places. Still open to traffic but under as much as a foot of water in places was County Trunk Y where it neared the Embarrass river and County Trunk S around Ogensburg and Little Falls.

Several bad washouts were reported on County Trunk T north of Sheridan. Other roads to the north were reported damaged.

Appleton Lawyer Flays Communism

Hegner Warns Holy Name Society About Dangers Of Red Principles

New London — The rise and spread of communism and socialism and the need of their suppression was the subject of a talk by Attorney William Hegner of Appleton before a breakfast meeting of the Holy Name society of the Most Precious Blood church at the parish hall Sunday morning.

Communism and socialism are twins, the speaker declared, and quoted eminent socialists who admitted that communism was only the fulfillment of socialism.

Unrest and dejection among the peoples of the world has favored the rapid spread of communistic ideas in a frantic effort to find a way of prosperity, the attorney spoke. Followers are increasing three times as fast in the United States as in other countries, he pointed out.

A world-wide revolution is the ultimate aim of communism, according to the speaker, and he urged the concentration of all forces toward stopping the spread of the anti-religious principles. He labeled communistic propaganda as the most wicked, emerging from all sources and its disciples seeping into all walks of life.

Ickes Pushes Two Maryland Bridges On Election Eve

Telegram to PWA Official Indicates, Politics Involved, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—"Political Morality" was a term recently used by President Roosevelt and it implies that there is some sort of code of decency in politics and in government. Sometimes the code touches dishonesty and graft, sometimes it touches everyday ethics and sometimes it merely touches good taste.

Lawrence

The question of what classification should be made of the latest pronouncement from the head of the Public Works administration on the eve of the Maryland primary election is one that each person will no doubt wish to make for himself when the facts are presented. Here are the facts:

The PWA is supposed to be a non-political institution. Graft in favoring this or that contractor is tabooed. Favors are not supposed to be dispensed on any political basis but on merit alone. If the people of a state want a bridge, the decision is not supposed to be made on whether the voters are pro or anti-administration, but on whether the project is sound from an engineering standpoint and is truly in the public interest.

If Chairman Farley of the Democratic National committee were to say to the PWA administrator, "I want you to put so-and-so in charge of this project or I want you to approve a spending program of several millions in this particular state," Mr. Ickes is supposed, under a truly ethical regime, to tell Genial Jim that politics has no place in the PWA and that public office is a public trust.

Push Maryland Jobs

The PWA is flooded with requests for construction projects. They must go through a certain routine before they are approved. Competent persons presumably are employed in the regional emergencies to influence their judgment in handling office business. Yet out of the pile of hundreds of bridge projects throughout the country, Secretary Ickes chooses two in Maryland to push ahead of the rest on the very eve of a primary election in Maryland in which he and the president have publicly declared themselves as partisans of a particular candidate.

Up to now, charges have been made that the administration has used federal employes on the WPA and federal officeholders generally for vote-getting purposes but as for the PWA the trail of political scandal has not been dragged so conspicuously before across the fine reputation of Secretary Harold Ickes.

Mr. Ickes was a "liberal Republican" before he lapsed into New Dealism. He has been rightly nicknamed "Honest Harold" because nobody can justly point a finger of criticism of impropriety or personal profit against him in all of these years that he has handled billions of dollars of public funds. But he has succumbed finally to the wiles of the politicians.

Ickes Has Changed

If he were still a "liberal Republican," possessed of the same fiery passion for true liberalism that he used to have, he would today be outside the administration denouncing the exploitation of the electorate by the use of public funds. He would be condemning it as unworthy of a free people. He would be using up all the invectives in the vocabulary of satire and ridicule.

The friends and admirers of Mr. Ickes, among them whom this correspondent counts himself, will be loath to believe that Mr. Ickes has of his own accord adopted the Tammany type of political strategy. The text of his statement would seem to indicate that maybe somebody "higher-up" forced his hand. The announcement about the Maryland bridges was in the form of a telegram from Mr. Ickes to Colonel Maurice Gilmore, the PWA regional director in New York, which said:

"The president has sent me a memorandum from New York directing that prompt attention be paid to the applications for the bridges at Havre de Grace across the Susquehanna river and over the Potomac near Morgantown. I understand that these applications with accompanying dockets are still in regional office. Please give them right of way as to examination and forward with your recommendations at your earliest convenience."

President Talks

It may be asked what the matter is with Colonel Gilmore? Didn't he know that President Roosevelt himself made a speech last week at the site of the Morgantown bridge and referred to it as a measure of "national defense"? Doesn't he realize there's a political emergency in Maryland and papers like this must be given right of way? Perhaps the PWA subordinates don't know that national defense and political defense may be synonymous in a contest involving the election of a candidate for the United States senate. Mr. Roosevelt spoke last week in that part of Maryland where opposition to the administration's man is strong and where promises of large spending programs presumably will make the Democratic voters in that section of Maryland responsive.

Presumably also, the contractors who are to supply the raw materials and get the profits from the construction work, the local stores and the local labor who are to be benefited by the spending of $14,000,000 for the two bridges will look forward to the bridge construction as something that will bring them prosperity—but only if the voting goes right in the primary.

The "wicked Republicans" used to do things of this sort with what has historically been known as "pork barrel" legislation, but such political crimes and misdemeanors were confined almost wholly to members of congress and never touched the sacred precincts of the White House. Presidents were supposed to be above that sort of thing.

The New Deal, however, has brought many a change and established many a precedent, not the least of which is the king-can-do-no-wrong concept which defines virtue as 100 per cent support of the administration and unmorality as only those things said or done by the persons on the other side of the political fence.

Packers Pass Way To Win Over Rams

Herber to Hutson Combination Clicks for 3 Touchdowns

Cleveland Pulls 53-Yard Pass During Opening Pro League Tilt

GREEN BAY—(AP)—The forward passing combination of Arnie Herber to Don Hutson clicked with all its old-time perfection yesterday as the Green Bay Packers opened their national professional football league season with a 26 to 17 victory over the Cleveland Rams.

Three Herber passes brought three Hutson touchdowns and cheers from 8,247 cash customers.

Cleveland took a 3-0 lead in the first period on Peterson's 18-yard field goal, but Clark Hinkle tied it in a few minutes with the first of two field goals, a 36-yard boot.

Intercept Pass

Near the end of the first half Bob Monnett of the Bays intercepted Bob Davis' forward and returned the ball 33 yards to the Cleveland 32. After the Packers advanced to the 7-yard line Herber flipped a pass to Hutson for the first touchdown, and Eddie Jankowski kicked the point.

Then, with the ball on the Rams' 47-yard line, Herber sailed a forward to Hutson on the 3-yard stripe, and Hutson stepped over. Jankowski again converted for a 17 to 3 lead.

A few plays later Cleveland executed a 53-yard forward pass, Snyder to Goddard on the Green Bay 47-yard line, Goodard sprinting down the sidelines to score. Goddard booted the point. Just before the half ended Hinkle registered a 24-yard field goal, making it 2 to 10 for the Packers.

Rams Score

On the first play of the fourth period Herber passed 18 yards to Hutson for another touchdown. Jankowski missed the goal. Cleveland came right back and marched 64 yards to score. Peterson went over after spearing a 5-yard pass from Snyder over the goal line. Snyder kicked goal, making the final score 26 to 17.

BATTLE IN RAIN

Chicago —(AP)— The national professional football teams weren't fooling when they centered their pre-season demonstrations on aerial maneuvers.

The season proper opened yesterday with eight clubs in action and of the 22 touchdowns scored, passes accounted for 11 and led to two others. A lateral brought another.

Baugh Disabled

The Redskins, already crippled by the loss of quarterback Riley Smith, will be without the services of Sammy Baugh for three weeks following their close 26 to 23 win over Philadelphia. After completing eight of nine passes, two of them for scores, Baugh was forced from the game in the second quarter with a dislocated shoulder.

Pittsburgh and Whizzer White bumped into their second straight setback when Ed Danowski and Tuffy Leeman of the Giants unlimbered their arms and threw enough passes to down the Pirates 27 to 14.

The burly Bears had to call on Jack Manders' toe to turn back a mighty challenge from Chicago's Cardinals. With four minutes to play and the ball on the Cards' 14 yard line, Manders booted a field goal to break a 13 to 13 tie in a night game at Soldier field.

Old Westbury Team Wins U. S. Open Polo Title

Westbury, N. Y. —(AP)— The leading candidate for the 1939 United States international polo team, which will play England early next season, apparently is not any individual but a team—Old Westbury.

The powerful quartet of Mike Phipps, Cecil Smith, Stewart Iglehart and C. V. Whitney won the national open title for the second year yesterday, again defeating Tommy Hitchcock's Greentree four. The score was 16 to 7, even more decisive than the 11-6 score of last year's final.

Plenty of Candidates on Hand to Replace Frisch as Manager of St. Louis Nine

REDS' MANAGER

Pennant for Reds, at end of his first season as their manager, is goal of Bill McKechnie, formerly with Boston Bees.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— Frankie Frisch the Fordham flash, and the Gas House Gang parted company today on an upbeat—Pitcher Paul Dean's potential comeback.

Frisch was paid off for the season yesterday after the younger brother of Dizzy Dean had subdued the National league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 4.

The victory, climaxing Paul's uphill fight in the minors to iron out a sore arm, perhaps means a stronger pitching staff for the Cardinals—probably Frisch's greatest need this season.

List Prospects

Among prospects rumored to succeed the veteran field boss were Burt Shotton, manager of the Columbus Redbirds of the American association, and National league managers Jimmy Wilson of the Philadelphia Phillies and Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Deposed Charley Grimm of the Chicago Cubs, infielder Leo (Lippy) Durocher of the Dodgers and Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane, late of the Detroit Tigers, also were possibilities.

Shotton was described as "Branch Rickey's type of manager." Columbus, a Cardinal farm, finished next to last this year.

Grimes, mentioned in the past as a prospective Cardinal manager, has been reported quaky with the seventh place Flatbushers. Wilson's last-place Phillies leave him in the shadow of the boot also.

Gonzales at Helm

Grimm has been talking baseball for a Chicago radio station but was reported open to suggestion.

Mike Gonzales, Cuban-born Cardinal coach, will replace the 41-year old Frisch the remainder of the season, but President Sam Breadon indicated Gonzales would not continue into next year.

If the front office has a new pilot spotted, it gave no indication. Breadon's statement said simply "I believe a change in managers is necessary for 1939," adding he did not blame Frisch for the Cards' second-division place.

Frisch, aside from saying he gave his best, had no comment on his release. He said he would remain here several days before leaving for his home in new Rochelle, N. Y.

Succeeded Street

Vaulting into the National league from Fordham university in 1919, Frisch played second base, shortstop and third base for the Giants eight years and took part in four straight world series. He was traded to the Cardinals in 1927 and succeeded Charles E. (Gabby) Street as manager on July 24, 1933.

Frisch's brilliant performance at second base was an important cog in the Cardinal pennant winning teams of 1928, 1930, 1931 and 1934.

He played in 50 World series games, a record unequaled.

This year Frisch was a bench manager, having withdrawn from the active player list at the end of the 1937 season.

Brewers Finish in Third; Saints Bag 8th League Title

Milwaukee Closes Season Schedule With Double Loss to Millers

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — With nothing to lose and everything to gain, the Milwaukee Brewers closed their season's schedule yesterday by presenting the Minneapolis Millers with both ends of a double header, 7 to 1 and 3 to 2.

Spindly Ted Williams nicked Jose Gonzales of the Brewers for two singles, a triple and his forty-third home run of the season in the first game. The only Brewer run off Belve Bean came in the second inning on singles by Oscar Grimes, Joe Just and Gonzales.

The second game went eight innings in a slab duel between Wilfred LeFebvre of the Millers and Allan Johnson and Ralph Winegarner of Milwaukee. Stan Spence singled with the bases full to end the affair.

BEGIN PLAYOFFS

The St. Paul Saints, winners of more championships than any other American association club, peered over their eighth pennant today and into the possibilities of reaching the "little world series" with the International league's color bearer.

The first test will come tomorrow when the Saints oppose third place Milwaukee in the first round of the Shaughnessy playoffs. The first two games with the Brewers will be played here. Then the two clubs will move to Milwaukee. At the same time, second place Kansas City will oppose fourth place Indianapolis in another set-to with the first three games being played at Kansas City.

St. Paul clinched the 1938 championship, its first since 1931, in the first game of a double header with Kansas City Saturday. Yesterday, however, it turned the Blues twice more, 7 to 1 and 6 to 5.

Toledo defeated Louisville 11 to 1 to remain in fifth place. Indianapolis clinched fourth by downing Columbus 7 to 5.

PACKERS OPEN PRO GRID RACE WITH WIN

Green Bay Packers opened the National Professional Football league race yesterday with a 27 to 16 victory over the Cleveland Rams. In the upper picture Ed Goddard, No. 28, of the Rams has just caught a forward pass on the Green Bay 47-yard stripe and has started a gallop that resulted in a touchdown. The picture shows, left to right, Darrell Lester, No. 29, Packers; Tom Hupke, No. 22, Cleveland; Goddard; Tinsley, No. 20, Packers; and Eddie Jankowski, No. 29, Packers. In the picture at the right, Don Hutson, No. 14, Packers, has just been tackled after an end-around play which resulted in no gain. Corby Davis of Cleveland, who comes from Indiana, and who starred in the All-Star-Pro game at Chicago, is making the tackle. (Press-Gazette Photos)

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

THE GREEN BAY PACKERS opened the Pro league season yesterday afternoon with a victory over the Cleveland Rams and now the fans are speculating whether they'll go far in the grid race and whether they'll beat the Bears next Sunday. And to those who say they didn't look so good we say, "Wait," and likewise to those who say they looked tops.

One game certainly doesn't make a season and yesterday's contest wasn't played under conditions the Packers like. The field was terribly slow after the week's rain and the ball wasn't the easiest thing to handle. As a result the Bays looked sluggish in some of their efforts and the game at times seemed slow.

But a few things are certain. The Packers have a lot of passing strength and they'll be dangerous with almost any combination of players. They also have some fair running ability which probably will get better as the season progresses and the new men become accustomed to assignments. One touchdown scored against them yesterday came from some shoddy tackling but that will be taken care of. Another was the result of a weak defensive man on forward passes and that also will be corrected.

The Packer line wasn't the hottest thing in the books yesterday with the result the running attack wasn't as potent as last year. But we're not ready to say the line won't improve. Red Smith, whose work is to direct the line, has plenty of work cut out for himself.

Next Sunday the Green and Gold will tangle with the Bears and the demand for ducats indicates a record crowd. The Bears sneaked through with a win over the Cardinals at Chicago last night which probably indicates the Cards are to be tough, too. But there's one thing to remember about next Sunday, there'll be plenty of room.

Things we didn't know till now and aren't sure of yet: A player removed from a football lineup just at the end of the first quarter cannot return during that same intermission, but must wait for at least one play in the second quarter. . . . If a player running with the ball bumps into the head linesman who is standing on the sideline the ball carrier is out of bounds, but if he bumps into an opponent standing on the sideline he is not out of bounds. . . . If a kickoff goes out of bounds the receiving team may put the ball in play anywhere on its own 35-yard line or 15 yards in from the point where the ball went out. . . . The backward point of a football is used in measuring for a safety — i. e., if a player tries to run the ball out of his own end zone and is tackled with the front end of the ball in the field of play and the back end in the end zone it is a safety. . . . A player who is discovered wearing illegal equipment must remove it within two minutes or be suspended for the rest of the game . . . good spot for a quick-change artist.

At least two men connected with Class D baseball in other sections of the country and who live in the Fox river valley, are booming the setup now that they are back in these parts for the fall and winter. One is Red Smith, assistant Packer coach, who handles the Milwaukee Brewer Hopkinsville, Ky., farm in a Class D loop. The other is Ky Duex, Oshkosh, who was with Muskogee, Okla., in the Western association, a Class C league but who now is with Waterloo of the Three-Eye, a Class B team.

Smith talked Class D ball at Clintonville the other night and plans to make several trips through the valley this winter promoting the sport. Duex is loud in his praise of the Class C and B setup and feels the Fox river valley could easily support teams. Next year he hopes to take some of the Valley talent with him to Muskogee and Waterloo.

Assistant Coach Ade Dillon at Lawrence is back after a summer at a boys camp near Fence lake in the northern part of the state. He handled sports. Ade also caught for the Lac du Flambeau Indian baseball team being the only heathen on the squad. He was picked on the Wisconsin river valley all-star team as a catcher but didn't play in the game because he had to leave.

Jerry Frogner, Appleton, who graduated from Oshkosh State Teachers college, will be the assistant coach at Shawano this year. Cliff Dilts, formerly of Menasha, is coach.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

USING BODY POWER

A good two-thirds of the average players strike at the ball in such a hurry that their hands reach the contact stage far in advance of their bodies. Yet fully seventy-five per cent of this number know that to gain maximum distance the power of the body must be added to the blow. Their fear of hitting the ball incorrectly however induces them to forsake this extra yardage, to content themselves with a swing that brings poor results at best. Naturally it is difficult to bring the body into play, during an actual round when one is used to an arm motion only. The place to change is on the practice tee, and here the policy of using the arms and body motion in unison should be so perserved with that the normal reaction will be to play in this fashion in an actual round.

One way of developing a better body turn is to keep the arms stiff and stroke the ball with but a lateral movement of the shoulders. This will start the golfer off on the right track and the matter of cocking and uncocking the wrists can be ironed out later. Another method is to scuff the turf lightly by swinging the club to and fro, employing plenty of body turn in the swing each way. Notice how much bodily power Henry Picard has put into his swing in the lower illustration above. Despite the great transfer of weight from the right to the left foot, he is still in position of perfect balance at the finish of the stroke.

Providing the weather permits, Coated Paper company softballers and the Woolen Mills will clash at 5:15 this afternoon at Roosevelt field in the final playoff game of the second round of the American league. If Coated wins it will meet the Woolens in a 3-game title series. If the Woolens cop the season will be over. The Woolens won first round honors.

In the event of rain or wet grounds the game is scheduled Tuesday evening.

County Loop Games Sunday are Postponed

All games in the Outagamie County Baseball league were postponed yesterday because of wet grounds. Because several have no bearing on the second round race it is possible that they'll be cancelled.

Schedule Finals In International Softball Tourney

Chicago —(AP)— International softball supremacy will be won tonight, either by Cincinnati's Pohlar Cafe team or Little Rock's International Harvesters, at Soldier Field.

After four days of battling over rain-sodden fields, the two emerged undefeated last night in their respective brackets. Cincinnati defeated the Des Moines, Iowa, Packers, 4 to 2, and handed Al Linde his first defeat in 31 starts this season.

Ed "King Kong" Kelly's one-hit pitching and a misjudged fly ball off the bat of Bob Halcomb that went for a home run enabled the Arkansas team to turn back the Tolleson Lettuce Kings of Phoenix, Ariz., 1 to 0.

Earlier in the day Phoenix had gone 22 innings to defeat the United Cleaners of Toronto, Can., 1 to 0, and surpass the previous "longest game" record of 19 innings. Another Phoenix club and Kenosha, Wis., set the old mark in 1934.

In the girls' championship tonight the Down Draft girls of Chicago will meet the J. J. Krieg team of Alameda, Calif. The West Coast Girls came from behind last night to eliminate the Phoenix, Ariz., Ramblers, 3 to 2. Errors led to all Chicago's runs and a 3 to 1 win over Mayfield, Kentucky's Style Mart club.

Navy Coach Hasn't Hopes Of Beating the Army--Yet

(This is another of a series on 1938 college football prospects)

BY WILLIAM NEEDHAM

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—(AP)—Let the admiral paste this one in his fore-and-aft hat—even if it does come from a lieutenant:

Navy's chances of beating Army in football this November are nothing to start firing salutes about—yet.

That's from Lieut Harry J. "Hank" Hardwick, head coach at the naval academy, who has a squad of 80, a yearning need for speed and a climax runner, and no false hopes.

They were scrimmaging today, with less than a week of practice under their belts—but let Hardwick tell it:

"We haven't got the material this year. We lost practically all our backfield. Last year, we had a power backfield with no speed. This year, we've got the same thing.

"Frankly, the outlook right now is not nearly so bright as it was at this time last season—and we worked up a lot of false hopes last year, you'll remember."

Opening game, with William and Mary, is 12 days away. The Tars have no worries there, but the second game, with V. M. I. is a lot tougher. Then, in succession, come Virginia, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Columbia and—Army.

A spinner attack and plenty of deceptive plays are on the program Hardwick has mapped out. He hopes to find, in training, the climax runner and a speed combination needed to change Navy from the mediocre battleship of 1937 to a swift, easily-maneuvered destroyer fleet.

More blocking for the ball carriers, at times the use of a five-man line, and a flexible defense adaptable to any opposition are some of the things the navy coaching staff hopes to offer.

Goodman Defends Title in National Amateur Golf Meet

Strongest Competition Expected to Come From Walker Cuppers

BY PAUL MICKELSON

OAKMONT, Pa.—(AP)— One hundred and sixty seekers of fame, ranging in age and hope from 15 years to 54, ventured into golf's notorious "haunted house," known as terrible Oakmont, today in pusuit of the national amateur championship.

The week's struggle of chance, luck and skill, opening with two 18-hole qualifying rounds today and tomorrow, was led by Omaha's Johnny Goodman, now fat and 28 but still rated as the man they must beat for the tall-solid gold championship trophy that has been won twice in a row only by Lawson Little since the immortal Bob Jones retired with his grand slam eight years ago.

Field Is Strong

Except for Charles Kocsis and the venerable Francis Ouimet, forced out because of business, America's entire Walker cup team was in the show. And though title threats were so numerous any one of 20 could come through without the semblance of an upset, the strongest drive was expected from the Walker cup lineup which included besides Goodman: Charley Yates of Atlanta, British amateur champion, Freddie Haas, New Orleans; Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, 1936 champion; Reynolds Smith, Dallas; Marvin "Bud" Ward, Olympia, Washington, and Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie.

Four other ex-champs were in the field—Chick Evans, Jess Sweetser, Dave Herron and C. Ross Somerville of Canada, regarded as the only serious threat from a foreign contingent of six that included, for the most part, international Sunday golfers.

Playing a strange role was Ellsworth Vines, Jr., the world's professional tennis champion. Though he insisted he didn't think he'd even qualify "Elly" impressed many railbirds with his game. What probably will stop him will be the strain of tournament play. For the amateur is one of sport's hardest events. After the qualifying test of 36 holes, the 64 qualifiers will engage in match play at the rate of two rounds Wednesday and Thursday at 18 holes each with the semi-finals and final at 36.

DUCK HUNTERS, AHOY! HERE'S 1938 DOPE

Time to Oil Up Guns Is Here

By Cal Johnson

COME on, fellers, and oil your favorite shotguns, buy a few new shells, and get set for the new waterfowl season. We have a better break with fifteen more days to hunt this year and the ban has been lifted on some species that were protected the past few years — so it looks like a royal good time and enough ducks for everyone.

The earlier and extended season was authorized in an order approved by the president, based upon a bureau investigation of duck hunting conditions. The coming season will be for 45 days instead of the 30 days which were open to hunters the past three seasons.

The current order prescribes the following seasons for ducks, geese, jacksnipe and coot in the three zones into which the country has been divided:

Hunters in the Northern Zone made up of Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin have open season from Oct. 1 to Nov. 14.

In the Intermediate Zone which includes California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York (including Long Island), Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, and Wyoming the dates are from Oct. 15 to Nov. 28.

The Southern Zone which includes Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia will have shooting from Nov. 15 to Dec. 29.

Regulations More Liberal

The new regulations permit an increase in the number of ducks allowed in the hunter's possession to two daily bag limits of ten birds each, instead of one day's bag of ten. The restriction on the number of waterfowl the hunter may kill in a single day is continued at ten.

The bars have been lowered on some species of wildfowl and it is permissible to gun for some birds formerly on the protected list. The species now subject to limited shooting are redheads, canvassbacks, buffleheads, and ruddy ducks. They had been protected the last two years. Three of one species, or three in the aggregate of the species, can be shot in one day, and twice that number is permitted in the hunter's possession.

The easing of restrictions followed an increase in ducks since the strict control of the last several years improved conditions, according to Dr. Ida N. Gabrielson, chief of the United States Biological Survey. Past restrictions, including prohibition of baiting of waterfowl and doves and the use of more than three shells on repeating and automatic shotguns, will be continued.

ST. LOUIS, —(AP)— Paul Dean hit the major league trails with much of his old effectiveness Sunday as the Cardinals turned back the pace setting Pittsburgh Pirates by a score of 6 to 4.

Paul, just back from a "sore arm cure" in the minor leagues, started his first game of the season for the Cardinals and went the full route, striking out seven batters. However, he was slapped hard at times and it was not until after Johnny Mize's home run that tied the score in the fourth inning that he appeared in old form.

Five of the 12 hits off Dean were extra base blows, home runs by Johnny Rizzo and Al Todd, and doubles by Lee Handley and Arkie Vaughan.

The sky looked cloudy for young Dean at the outset. Lloyd Waner, the first man up, greeted him with a sharp single. Paul Waner struck out, and after Lloyd had stolen second Johnnie Rizzo looped one into the left field bleachers. In the second Handley doubled to start a Cardinal hurler to warming up. But Paul bore down and fanned two men in order. Two singles and a walk netted the Pirates their third run in the third stanza.

LEE BLANKS REDS

Chicago —(AP)— Big Bill Lee broke the second place tie between Chicago and Cincinnati in the National league Sunday by blanking the Reds, 2 to 0, before a crowd of 20,728.

The victory, his eighteenth of the season and his second consecutive shutout, came at the expense of Paul Derringer, who was trying for his twentieth triumph of the year. Lee allowed just four hits, two of them doubles by Ival Goodman. The Cub outfield collected only three putouts as the righthander ran his list of shoutouts for 1937 to seven.

Derringer was nicked for seven hits, three of them by Stan Hack, who registered both Cub runs. Hack singled in the third inning and scored on Billy Herrman's double. In the eighth, he hit his third home run of the season.

The game ended play between the two clubs for the season with each having won 11 games.

DODGERS BLANK GIANTS

New York —(AP)— Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin tossed a seven hitter Sunday and the Brooklyn Dodgers blanked their ancient enemies, the Giants, 3 to 0, to take the current series, two games to one.

Scoring all their runs off Rookie Johnny Wittig in a second inning splurge, the Brooklyns made it 14 times this season the National league champions have been whitewashed. The Giants now lead the league in this respect.

The Dodgers coupled three of their seven hits with three passes to do all the game's scoring in the second. Gilly Campbell singled, Cookie Lavagetto walked. Leo Durocher singled and Hamlin whacked a two bagger. Then passes to Goody Rosen and Johnny Hudson sent Wittig to the showers.

PHILS, BEES SPLIT

Philadelphia —(AP)— The Phillies and Boston Bees split a double-header at Shibe park Sunday. Philadelphia won the first game 11-2 when Hugh Mulcahy scattered 12 Boston hits while his mates thumped the offerings of three visiting hurlers for 16 safeties.

Boston won the second tilt, 3-2, when Hutchinson and Errickson combined to outpitch Max Butcher.

Phil Weintraub topped the day's batting with five hits in eight trips to the plate. Charley Sutcliffe, Boston, and Del Young, Philadelphia, were banished in the sixth inning of the first game over a fist fight on a play at second base.

Favor Peter Astra to Win First Reading Race

Reading, Pa. —(AP)— Peter Astra, owned by Dr. H. M. Parshall, of Urbana, Ohio, was favored to win the $2,100 two-year-old futurity trot feature on today's opening card of the grand circuit meet at the Reading fair grounds.

Peter Astra, who won the rainy day sweepstakes at North Randall, Ohio, is one of the nine trotters entered.

The two-year-old trot is one of four futurities, worth an aggregate of $10,000, that will feature the week's program, recognized as one of the richest half-mile harness meets in the nation.

Six starters will battle in the $2,200 three-year-old pace Tuesday.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box.

By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON

QUESTION: Taking college football in general, what is the basis of offense?

Answer: Running with the ball is definitely the basis of the football offense. The average number of plays is about 140 in a game. Kick-offs average about five. Kicking plays average about twenty. Forward passes range as a rule between 25 to 30. The remainder is the running attack.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The usually wild Joe Krakauskas had his fire ball under control Sunday and pitched the Senators to a 6 to 3 victory over the world champion Yankees.

Joe issued only two passes and struck out eight. He also connected for two singles and scored two runs.

The Senators hopped on Spud Chandler for four runs in the third inning. These they scored on Taft Wright's single with the bases full, a hit by Al Simmons, and a sacrifice fly by Zeke Bonura.

Washington picked up another in the fourth when Krakauskas' single sent Bluege home. The Senators' final run came in the sixth when Buddy Lewis singled to score Krakauskas.

Joe held the Yankee sluggers to two hits for five innings. In the sixth, singles by Crosetti and Rolfe and a triple by Hoag gave the New Yorkers their first two runs. Their third came in the eighth when Crosetti walked, went to third on Rolfe's second hit, and scored on a fly by Hoag. Dickey ended a threatened rally by letting a third strike go by with runners on second and third.

Sunday's loss left the Yanks with a two to one edge for the three game series.

FELLER WINS, HARDER LOSES

Cleveland — (AP) — Because Mel Harder dropped a 4-3 decision to St. Louis after Bob Feller subdued the Browns in the opener of a twin bill, 6-2, the Cleveland Indians fell a half game behind the winning Boston club Sunday in the American league's second place race.

Ken Keltner hit a homer in each game and had seven straight hits today. Hal Trosky also hit for the circuit.

Feller passed out only five hits and five walks in winning his fifteenth victory of the campaign. He struck out seven batters and easily bested his mound foe, Howard Mills.

It was a different story in the afterpiece, however. The Indians held a 3-1 lead when the Browns, behind Russ Van Atta, broke out with three runs in the seventh off Mel Harder. With one out, Bell singled, Kress popped up, Sullivan doubled and Heffner brought both runners home with a single. Van Atta doubled over Jeff Heath's head to win his own ball game.

HEVING CHASED

Boston —(AP)— Nineteen lusty Red Sox wallops off four Philadelphia pitchers Sunday gave Boston a 12 to 7 victory in the final game of the series with the Athletics. The A's won the first two games of the set.

Pinky Higgins contributed two singles and a 450-foot home run into center field bleachers with two on in the first inning—one of the few times a ball ever has been hit into that distant sector.

Joe Vosmik, with four singles; Manager Joe Cronin, with a double and two singles, and Bobby Doerr, with three singles, led the assault in which every Red Socker except the pitchers participated.

Joe Heving started for Boston, but had to be relieved because of wildness in the third inning. Wilson allowed only seven hits the rest of the way as he earned his fourteenth win of the season.

HANK GETS 2 MORE

Detroit —(AP)— Hank Greenberg poled his forty-eighth and forty-ninth home runs of the season Sunday and moved within one of the record breaking 1927 pace set by Babe Ruth, as the Detroit Tigers took both ends of a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 10-1 and 5-3.

Hammering Hank's two circuit clouts came in the first game, the first with one on. Both came off Ted Lyons. On Sept. 11 in 1927, the year the Babe hit 60 for a major league record, Ruth had 50 to his credit.

Chicago's only run in the first contest was a circuit blow by Marv Owen.

Rudy York's thirty-third homer of the year proved the deciding factor in the second game. With the score tied at 3-all in the fifth, York drove one out of the lot and scored behind Greenberg.

Expect Grimm Will Land With Cards Next Season

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK — (AP) — If Cholly Grimm and his banjo don't land with the Cardinals, the grapevine's wrong . . . And it might be a good parlay to pick Frankie Frisch for a connection with the Giants or Brooklyn . . . Tony Galento, back from the Poconos, scales a mere 240 — 26 pounds heavier than when he left the hospital . . . He stuck to training rules pretty regularly down there, but one scout reports he spotted Tony digging into hot dogs and tomatoes at 2 a. m. Sunday . . . The Pirates are so anxious to take the pennant they've won exactly three of their last nine games . . . Tom Baker, who cost the Giants 20 G's and Freddy Fitzsimmons last year, lost 22 games for Jersey City this season . . . are ya lis'nin', Mistah Terry? . . .

Grimm

Has anyone heard from Dizzy since Daffy came back with a bang . . . Jesse Owens (remember?) is 25 today . . . And definitely will not celebrate by racing a horse . . . Baltimore may have to bid against Minneapolis for Rogers Hornsby . . . Mike Kelly, the Miller's owner is a pal of the Rajah's, and could try to land him for Donie Bush's job . . . Whizzer White will give up football for keeps when he finishes the pro season . . . He's going to take the Oxford course, then be a lawyer.

Wouldn't it be something if the Pirates and Reds beat each other's ears off in those seven games they still have to play—and the Cubs sneak in through the back door? . . . Or would it? . . . Notre Dame's trip to Southern California in December has South Bend so hepped up already that some of the boys are planning a 10-day party through Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, and points north for everybody who wants to come . . . Joe DiMaggio polled 61 per cent of the votes to win the center field spot on that cereal company's popularity team . . . Earl Averill, who was second, drew only 12 . . . And Bill Dickey and Gabby Hartnett are running neck and neck for the catcher's job . . . Jack Corbett of Syracuse has all the big league clubs in sight interested in Johnny Gee, his six-foot-six flinger . . . And will come close to collecting a near record price for the big fellow. . .

Frankie Frisch says the real reason he left the Cards was because he and Sam Breadon couldn't agree on next year's pay . . . Incidentally, this department wouldn't be at all surprised if Onkel Frankie wasn't just a leetle bit glad to leave the gas housers behind . . . Brooklyn's new hero is Horace Hockett, a fly chaser fresh up from Dayton . . . He used to carry the mail in the Auburn backfield, and could have landed with the Cards and White Sox before the Dodgers got him for nothing . . . Ben Foord, the South African socker, is thinking of coming over here to pick up a dollar or two on the heavyweight market.

Little Interest Shown in Women's National Tennis Title Tournament

BY GAYLE TALBOT

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. — (AP) — Multiple marriages and galloping neuritis have combined to take all the zing out of women's tennis. Except for the few who have trekked to an outlying court to watch Kay Stammers play because they think she's pretty, customers at the national championships here are showing no interest in the girls.

The one most sorely missed is, of course, Helen Wills Moody, the reigning Wimbledon champion, who withdrew from the event upon advice of her physician. Likewise missing from the lists are Anita Lizana, of Chile, who won the American title last year, and Dorothy Round of England, 1937 Wimbledon queen. Both have married since their victories.

Budge Draws Crowds

With these racquet queens gone, there are only such old-time stalwarts as Helen Jacobs, Jadwiga Jedrezejowska, Madame Rene Mathieu, Alice Marble, Kay Stammers and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan to carry the load, and they aren't very exciting. Today, for instance, there were 16 survivors, and they were the 16 who were seeded before the tournament began.

The lack of interest in the women serves to emphasize the tremendous drawing power of Red Budge and, to a lesser extent, Jack Bromwich of Australia. The tournament is a sellout almost daily and is certain to gross the biggest sum in its 57-year history. It is easy to understand why the amateur tennis bodies of this country and England are trying to convince Budge he should not associate with professionals.

Remains Mystery

Budge, himself, remains a sweet mystery. Three days ago, playing against Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, he was a curley wolf. Yesterday he was a picture of suspended animation. It took him three hard sets, 6-3, 7-5, 9-7, to subdue Bob Kamrath of Austin, Tex., and he never looked like the great champion he is.

The champ still is troubled by a sore throat and his blood pressure is so far below normal they are thinking of sending divers down to grapple for it. He insists, however, that he will not default as long as he's on his feet.

Farmers in Hilbert Area are Expecting Second Crop of Peas

Hilbert — Farmers in this vicinity, who sowed peas for the canning factory and then had to leave them for seed peas are expecting their second crop of peas. When the seed peas were threshed, so many shelled out on the ground that the farmers cultivated them under. The weather was very favorable and unless frost comes too early they will soon have the second crop of seed peas. Some are starting to ripen now.

Hubert Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs, who reside a mile west and three quarters of a mile north of Hilbert, was involved in an accident about 3 o'clock Thursday morning when his car skidded on the wet pavement and struck a telephone pole on Highway 57 near the South village limits.

A meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society was held Friday evening at the Congregational church. Choir practice is being directed by Miss Joyce Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Baird of Beloit arrived Friday to spend a few days at the home of Mrs. Baird's mother, Mrs. Agnes Southard. Other visitors at the Southard home Friday were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stedjie and Mrs. Thomas Smith, New London; Mrs. Wallace Frye and son Ralph, Menasha.

Farmers in the vicinity are having considerable difficulty in disposing of their early cabbage crop, especially those who did not sign contracts. They are trucking the cabbage to Shiocton and New London to sell at $3 per ton. Many are spending the entire day before being able to unload their trucks.

SIX ACRES
Located on Highway 47, just one mile north of the city limits of Appleton. Best of land. Good seven-room house all in nice shape. There is also another small three-room house, a large hen house and a two-car garage with four living rooms overhead. This property is zoned for local business district. It is especially suitable for a filling station, tourist camping ground or any other similar business.

If you now own a piece of property in the city or contemplate building or buying a home, why not consider this property? Here you have a good house to live in and another house to rent for $10 a month, which would bring you $120 a year. This income will pay your taxes or a large portion of your interest. On this property you would have the opportunity to raise a nice amount of poultry and land enough to be used as a small vegetable or berry farm. The place is well located for a roadside market for these products. In fact, everything is right for anyone who buys this property to make exceptionally good use of it.

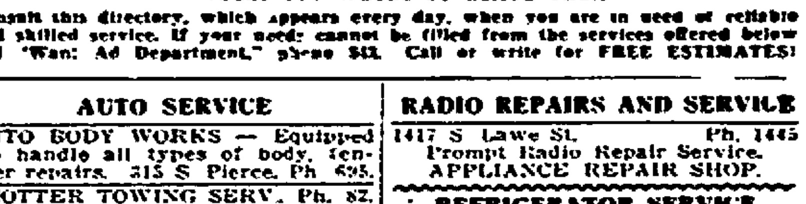

The price is only $6,000 and we can arrange for it to be purchased with a reasonable down payment and the balance in convenient monthly payments to the right party. This proposition merits your immediate investigation!

New York —(AP)— Ending one of the most crucial days in European history since the World war, the stock market today had shown ability to take the crisis in stride. Prices, after early irregularity, showed a number of gains running to 1 to 3 points.

The session was conspicuous for the timid pace of dealings, as traders awaited the fateful speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler on the central European situation.

Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Commodities, like stocks appeared uncertain rather than depressed, although grains gave a little ground at Chicago. Cotton, ahead most of the day, turned ragged toward the final gong. In the bond market, domestic loans were mixed, except for United States governments, still being adjusted to the recent financing program with lower bids.

Mixed trends were evident in the curb market.

Emphasizing the better brand of business at home which has been largely ignored recently in the shadow of war-like developments abroad was the report of the American Iron and Steel Institute showing mill operations this week scheduled to be the best since last November. The institute estimated turnout at 45.3 per cent of capacity, up 5.4 points, a rise that more than offset the dip caused in the previous week by the labor day shut-down in many plants.

Flood Dangers in State Decrease Despite New Rains

farmers with 70 to 100 cattle in the Chippewa bottoms, many undoubtedly drowned.

The La Crosse weather bureau, through A. D. Sanial, warned residents in the lower Chippewa valley to evacuate and remove all livestock to higher ground. The Mississippi was climbing rapidly above Wabasha, Minn., as the Chippewa dumped water into it.

The situation at Wausau was said to be relieved Sunday, with lessened fears the paper mill dam would go out for the second time this year. The water went down two feet Saturday night in the Wisconsin river.

Tracks Under Water

The Wisconsin valley division of the Milwaukee road had slow orders out from Wausau to Mosinee. There was no travel, and none expected, for two days, between Wabasha, Durand and Chippewa Falls on the Milwaukee. Fifty feet of mainland track at Mosinee were under water Sunday.

Uneasiness in Black River Falls, in the path of flood waters of the Black river should the Hatfield dam go out, were allayed Saturday night, although all 10 gates were open then and water was three feet over the top of the 500-foot wide structure.

The Chippewa and Eau Claire rivers, converging in downtown Eau Claire, Sunday night were at their highest levels since June, 1903, but were receding slightly.

Train Stalled

A Milwaukee road combination train was at Caryville, 10 miles downriver from Eau Claire, unable to go back to Durand or go to Wausau because of flooded tracks.

The Milwaukee road rerouted trains over North Western tracks between Ripon and Wisconsin Rapids.

Central Wisconsin cranberry growers estimated two-thirds of their crop had been destroyed. Vernon Goldsworthy, manager of the Wisconsin Cranberry company at Wisconsin Rapids, said at least $250,000 damage had been done, including damage to the crop itself, washing out of vines and of dikes. The entire crops of some growers were lost.

An approach to a bridge on Highway 54 west of Wisconsin Rapids was dynamited to provide for drainage of flood waters of Moccasin creek from some of the cranberry marshes.

Saturated farm fields, where the water had receded, were littered with debris and crops flattened and ruined.

Sparta, Wis. —(AP)— Rain-soaked Wisconsin's second passenger train wreck in three days, in which the westbound North West Limited of the Chicago and North Western railroad plowed into the rear of the road's crack Victory and sent four persons to hospitals, kept wrecking crews at work today.

The Victory, which also figured in a wreck near Hudson, Wis., early Friday resulting in two deaths, had stopped to test the culvert over the swollen Lemonweir river near Valley Junction early yesterday when the North West Limited's heavy locomotive struck the rear pullman.

Most seriously injured were Ed Karnapp, 59, of Minneapolis, engineer of the Victory; Paul E. Dallman, 48, Cokato, Minn., brakeman of the Victory; Frank F. Riplinger, 25, of Riplinger, Wis., and Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Gaertner, 42, of Brentwood, Mo.

Baggage Coach Demolished

S. H. Thorne, baggage clerk of the Victory, was pinned down for more than an hour under a pile of mail order catalogues. The wooden baggage coach in which he was working was demolished. Joseph Weirich, of Adams, Wis., engineer of the Limited, suffered from shock and bruises.

Carl R. Gray, Jr., of St. Paul, executive vice president of the road, said the Victory was running about 45 minutes late when it stopped at the Valley Junction culvert, under orders. The block signal was set and a fuse was out, but the foggy weather apparently caused the Limited's engineer to misjudge the distance, Gray said. The Limited was traveling 30 miles an hour after a stop at Wyeville.

Build Temporary Track

The locomotive, mail car and pullman of the second train were twisted across the right of way. The Victory's locomotive was cut loose from the coaches at the impact. The Limited's locomotive, after striking the Victor's rear pullman, plowed up the right of way between the double tracks.

A temporary track was built around the wreckage by crews from Altoona, Madison and Hudson.

Doctors, nurses and ambulances were sent from Tomah, Eau Claire and Camp Douglas. Karnapp, Dallman and Riplinger were taken to local hospitals suffering bruises and shock. Mrs. Gaertner was taken to a St. Paul hospital after the trains resumed their trips late last night. She received serious bruises.

French, British Cabinets Discuss European Crisis

latest reports from Nurnberg, Germany, where Hitler was to address a nazi party rally. Many Parisians abandoned work to gather on street corners and cafe terraces.

While the ministers were closeted in the war ministry offices—Premier Daladier is also war minister of his "national defense" cabinet—French fighting forces were keyed to their highest pitch of efficiency.

An estimated 2,000,000, 2,000 fighting planes and 200 ships of France's fighting fleets were in readiness.

An atmosphere of sharp tension spread through the capital despite officials' assurances that whatever Hitler's speech portended, many days might pass before any decisive steps were taken.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt conferred with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

PRAISES OFFICERS

Nurnberg, Germany—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, addressing 13,000 officers and men of the army, air force and marines today, assured them, "you have the best weapons existing today, you are getting the best training and I know you have the best character."

For the first time in eight days of rallies at the tenth annual nazi party congress, the fuehrer stood in the reviewing stand without his trusted chief lieutenant, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Unknown to the great multitude, Goering was taken ill suddenly last night and removed to a nearby town for "absolute rest."

Crowds standing before his hotel merely were told by a loudspeaker, "the police president wishes to announce that Field Marshal Goering presently is not at his hotel nor is he likely to return soon."

Speaks Seven Minutes

Hitler, whose portentious address on foreign policy will conclude the congress tonight, spoke only seven minutes to the military forces.

He assured them that only by their aid had the annexation of Austria been possible.

"No negotiations, no conferences gave us our natural right to unity," Hitler declared. "We had to take it and could take it, thanks to your existence, my soldiers!"

Workmen Will Install School Gym Equipment

Equipment for the new Appleton High school gymnasium arrived today and will be installed this week, according to H. H. Helble, principal. The hanging partition, which will split the gymnasium in two parts, and bleachers for the gymnasium are expected soon.

Hitler Against Plebiscite Idea For Sudeten Area

ing the impression that Germany is indifferent to the fate of the three and a half million (Sudeten Germans) in Czechoslovakia," he went on.

"Let the gentlemen in London be assured of this," he shouted.

Reviewing the first weeks of the crisis arising from the autonomy demands of the Sudeten Germans, Hitler denied Germany had any intention of marching into Czechoslovakia at that time, four months ago.

Assertions to the contrary are branded as "lies."

"I demand that the oppression of the three and a half million Germans in Czechoslovakia shall cease," he told the cheering audience. "The right of self-determination must be given to them!"

The Arabs in Palestine "maybe alone and defenseless, but the Germans in Czechoslovakia are not," he said.

Speeds Fortifications

Hitler said that he gave orders on May 28 to begin immediately with hurried completion of fortifications on the yestern frontier which had been under construction for two years.

He disclosed that Fritz Todt, noted as Germany's builder of highways, had been placed in charge of these operations.

Hitler finished his speech at 8:33 p. m. (1:33 p. m., C. S. T.)

At present, he said, 362,000 workers, 100,000 labor service men and numerous army engineering and infantry battalions were at work on the fortifications.

Daily 8,000 railroad cars transport material amounting to 100,000 tons into this region, he continued, "and I can assure you the work will be completed before winter sets in."

Build Lethal Chamber For Stray Dogs in City

The death sentence for stray dogs in Appleton won't be so hard on the dogs in the future for street department workmen last week completed the construction of a lethal chamber built of bricks and mortar, according to Lawrence Reinke, whose duty it is to see that stray dogs stray no more. The chamber is large enough to hold several animals which can be disposed of with carbon monoxide gas from an automobile exhaust. Dogs formerly were placed in a box and gassed.

Weather Forces Delay In Air Tour Scheduled To Stop Here Tomorrow

Poor flying conditions caused postponement to Sept. 19 of a state airplane tour scheduled to stop at the Outagamie county airport Wednesday afternoon, according to an announcement by Edward Hartfel, Lake Delton, secretary of the National Aeronautic association's Wisconsin chapter.

The tour had been scheduled to leave Manitowoc today, according to the Associated Press.

A tri-motor 12-passenger plane, flying here yesterday from Milwaukee to take part in the tour, was forced down by heavy fog and landed without mishap in a farmers field near Cascade, Wis. The plane was piloted by Colonel E. H. Leighton of Manitowoc, and carried Budd Fisher and Fred Prue, both pilots of Manitowoc, and Harvey Mueller, a parachute jumper from Cleveland, Ohio.

County Board Slated For Meeting Tuesday

The county board is scheduled to meet at 9:30 tomorrow morning, but adjournment probably will be the only order of business.

The meeting is one of several scheduled by the board to discuss plans for the proposed new courthouse. John E. Hantschel, county clerk, said today that because there has been no action on the county's request for a PWA grant in the construction of the proposed $650,000 building, the meeting probably will be adjourned to Sept. 21.

Gets $300 for Injuries In Bus-Auto Collision

An out-of-court settlement was effected today in the $1,500 suit of Miss Ada Pasch, Neenah, against the Milwaukee Auto Insurance company, Wisconsin Power and Light company, and Little Chute Supply company.

Miss Pasch accepted $300 for injuries received when the bus in which she was riding collided with a car on Highway 41 near Rainbow Gardens Jan. 17. William Paschen, of Kaukauna, driver of the car, was killed in the crash.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTMARSH

Paris; you might call him a second Stavisky on a smaller scale; and he'd have smelled out any inquiry involving himself quicker than you'd smell a skunk. I therefore continued to pursue my investigations independently, and on the first of January the Grimoire appeared."

Death In August

He paused dramatically. "The Grimoire appeared as usual, but under no imprint of publisher or printer, and subsequent inquiries elicited the fact that it had been hawked round the news agencies by an unknown individual, whom I have been unable to trace. He was a tall fellow, I am told, shabby, downcast, down-at-the-heel, down and out. Dirt-color all over and a dirty soul."

He fumbled in his pocket and extracted a shabby, crumpled leaflet. "Here we are," said he, opening it and adjusting a pair of shell-rimmed glasses on his nose. "The predictions for the month of August. Advertisements were carried in the previous issues, but not, you will perceive, in this one, from which I argue the use of a private printing-press. The author is not risking the disclosure of his identity."

I walked across and peered over his shoulder. The paper and printing were of the cheapest, and the top of the page was ornamented with a vividly executed drawing of a goat.

The month of August, it remarked encouragingly, would witness some of the worst disasters in the history of France, for strikes, civil disturbances, epidemics, all would take their toll of the unhappy population.

Sadistic crimes, it ran, would be rampant; and finally, towards the end of the month, an event would shatter the very foundations of international relations.

A prominent American Financier, honored and respected at home and abroad, would meet with a sudden and dreadful end while vacationing on the Riviera. The assassin would, unfortunately, make good his escape, and public opinion in the United States would be profoundly stirred.

The fact that he was negotiating a vast merger with certain prominent French banking houses was not overlooked by the assassins, and his sudden demise would undoubtedly create a panic in the money-markets of the world.

Hugo by my side had been reading word for word with me, while Ottilie Wills, perched on the opposite arm of Dunning's chair, watched our faces anxiously.

"You see?" she broke out, a trifle breathlessly, as we came to the end. "It's Uncle Virgoe—it could be no one else. There's no one like him in American finance at the moment. But—" She ran her fingers through her chestnut curls with an almost comical effect of bewilderment—"that merger! It was only suggested last fall, and nothing appeared about it in the papers till late spring. Uncle Virgoe's been fighting for it tooth and nail—but someone must have got wind of it."

"Vladimir Rakovsky, I imagine?" Hugo suggested dryly, and Dunning nodded.

He got to his feet and faced us, an unwieldy but somehow commanding figure. "That gentleman has powerful connections, as I told you. He has his finger on the pulse of this country's political and financial arteries. No, sir!" He stretched himself, lifting his shoulders and swelling out his great chest. "I'm not puzzling any as to how that information seeped through; but I'm not near the end of my story. When I had read, digested and absorbed that highly informative paragraph, I proceeded to give a careful scrutiny to the rest of the publication, and from that scrutiny one very significant fact emerged. Throughout the predictions for the year, there was no forecast of any other sudden death."

I whistled softly. "They were afraid?"

"Precisely!" he said.

New Traffic Lines On College Avenue Are Aid to Drivers

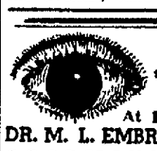

Sergeant Carl Radtke of the police department today asked drivers to respect the traffic lines which have been painted recently on College avenue.

"Those lines are there for a purpose and drivers will find that it will be to their advantage to follow them," Radtke said.

There are four lanes painted, two for each stream of traffic. Radtke issued the following directions:

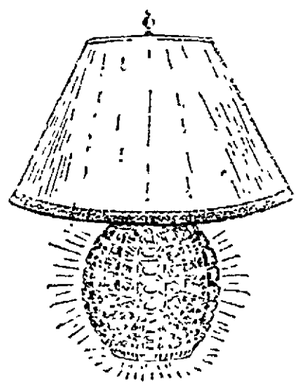

If you are driving slowly along the avenue, looking for a place to park, take the lane nearest the curb. If you are driving some distance on the avenue, take the lane next to the center of the street. With angle parking, there is room for cars to back out of parking stalls and still permit others to move along the lane nearest the center without interference.

Radtke requested drivers not to "straddle" the lines."
